CUP RACER WRECKED; HOWARD CREW SAFE

Gloucester, Nov. 8.—Ill luck continues to pursue fishing schooners which have figured in the races for the international fishermen's trophy.

Word was received here today that the Elizabeth Howard, an unsuccessful contender in two elimination contests to choose the American representative in the international event, had been wrecked off Porter's Island, Nova Scotia.

The news came in a telegram to Captain Ben Pine, skipper of the Columbia in this year's races with the Bluenose, off Halifax and manager of the Atlantic Supply Company.

The telegram to Captain Pine said the vessel went ashore yesterday twenty-eight miles east of Halifax harbor and was a total loss. The message was signed by Captain John McInnis of Gloucester. He and all eight members of the crew, the message said, were safe.

FORBID RETURN OF EX-CROWN PRINCE

Paris, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The allied council of Ambassadors decided today to ask the Dutch Government to prevent former Crown Prince Frederick William from leaving Dutch territory, where he has been in exile since the war.

The ambassadors also voted to ask the German Government not to allow him to enter Germany, as he is on the list of persons charged with war crimes whose arrest is sought by the Allied Governments.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and the United States were represented at the meeting. Sheldon Whitehouse, counselor of the American embassy, represented the United States as unofficial observer, but took no part in the vote.

In diplomatic circles no secret is made of the fact the the Dutch government would be rather relieved if Frederick William were taken off its hands, but it is expected to comply with the allies' wish.

PLOT TO SEIZE U. S. ZEPPELIN IS REVEALED IN BAVARIA

London, Nov. 8.—The Berlin correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph forwards a telegram from Munich which says that the Bavarian irregulars have decided to march on Berlin tomorrow.

Munich, Nov. 8 (C. N. S.)—Bavarian Nationalists have plotted to commandeer the giant Zeppelin ZR-3 which is being built for the United States Navy. The mighty airship is nearing completion at the Zeppelin Works at Friedrichshafen.

The Bavarian Government is taking steps to frustrate the conspiracy, fearing complications if it should be carried into effect.

The Friedrichshaven officials of the Zeppelin company are being closely guarded by police. The company is most anxious to complete the

DOT CLARK'S EX-HUBBY ARRESTED

Charged With Luring Girl to Boston and Living With Her in Back Bay

Karl L. Elms, youthful piano salesman who sprang into the limelight when he married 16-year-old Dorothy Clark, dancer and film star, and whose marriage was subsequently annulled, is under arrest in Newton on a charge of enticing Miss Alice Girard from her home in Auburndale and living with her in a Hemenway street apartment, Back Bay, Boston.

Elms was arraigned in the Newton District Court today, but the case was continued at the request of the police that a further investigation may be made before it comes to trial.

Elms had been living with his mother, Mrs. Frieda Elms, formerly of Lewiston, Me., at No. 119 Hemenway street, of late. At the time of his romance with Dorothy Clark he was living at No. 765 Boylston street, Brookline.

Miss Clark began her career in Brookline and the two met there.

Elms was only nineteen when they were married and his mother opposed the union, which took place in Nashua, N. H., in August, 1922. Mrs. Elms came to Boston from Lewiston hastily to prevent the marriage, but arrived too late.

At the same time Mrs. Ethel Clark, Dorothy's mother, was suing Herbert Rawlinson, the film actor, for $200,000 for an alleged attack upon Dorothy, which Mrs. Clark said was committed when Dorothy was only fifteen years old.

The case was settled out of court and the marriage of Elms and Dorothy subsequently annulled.

Philadelphia Man Admits His Wife Is Involved in Club Scandal

Philadelphia Nov. 8.—The fact that Mrs. Andrew Robinson, who lives at No. 332 Landillo road, a fashionable suburb of this city, is the Philadelphia woman mentioned in connection with the Crescent Athletic Club blackmail scandal, was admitted by the woman's husband.

Mrs. Robinson is alleged to have been the woman who wrote the letters to a club member which Dieters retrieved in pieces from the waste basket of the club, where he was employed as a telephone operator.

The husband of the woman in the case assumed a philosophical attitude concerning the mention of his wife's name.

Another police scandal was forecast as a possible outcome of the investigation by attaches of his office. The points on which the investigation will chiefly concern itself, they said, are these:

SPRACKLIN CALLED AS STATE WITNESS AT BLACKMAIL TRIAL

HOTEL MANAGER IS GRILLED ON CURTIS SHAKEDOWN

Maine where men are men and women "ain't lures."

Also the hotel manager was quizzed as to William H. Hutchinson, Lynn hardware dealer, with a man's sized bankroll, trapped by the ring at the Copley Square. Whether or not "Hutchy" paid isn't known.

SPRACKLIN ON STAND

Spracklin, with the sunlight playing on his silver hair, which he wears poet's length in the back, there being little on top, admitted that he had been treasurer of "Big Bill" Corcoran's drug company but hadn't "been active."

He said he signed the checks and that was all, only attending a director's meeting but once.

As dividends were not forthcoming, according to testimony, attendants brought little out of such meetings but memories of conservations.

The hotel man, twirling his hat of pearl, showed a curious lack of memory as regarding the testified presence of "Big Bill" Corcoran and the boys at various doings in his hotel.

He didn't remember having seen "Big Bill" there at all; was a perfect stranger to the lures and never —emphatically not—attended any of the feeds the lures testified to have taken place at his hotel with "Big Bill" and the boys as hosts.

Shown key to Room 45, where Hutchinson was trapped, Spracklin looked bored and evinced no interest in it whatever. Said he didn't know whether or not Hutchinson had occupied that room and that no proof that he had would be forthcoming, as the hotel register in use at that time had been destroyed.

JURY IS EXCUSED

Previous to taking the witness stand Spracklin was questioned by Judge Quinn relative to a statement given newspapers late Wednesday.

Attorney Charles H. Innes was also questioned by the court. Innes appeared in court with Spracklin yesterday.

During the interrogation the jury was excused.

Prosecutor Hill began by questioning Spracklin concerning the case of the "mysterious Mr. Curtis," who was a guest at the Copley Square Hotel the night of July 10, 1919, and who was mentioned in the indictments as one of the blackmail victims.

Q.—What is your full name? A.—Ernest B. Spracklin.

Q.—Where do you live? A.—The Copley Square Hotel.

Q.—How long have you lived there? A.—Eight years.

Q.—What is you business? A.—Manager of the hotel.

Q.—How long have you been manager? A.—Eight years.

Q.—Then you were manager of the Copley Square Hotel in 1919? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you the books of the hotel? A.—I have sent for them.

MAX KORN, BLACKMAIL WITNESS

Q.—Do you recall that on or about midnight of July 10, 1919, there was a guest named Curtis in your hotel? A.—There were many Curtises there.

Q.—How many? A.—Two or three.

Q.—Weren't you at some time called to the room of Mr. Curtis? A.—There was something like that, but I was not asked about it until two years later. There were some people in the room who claimed they were being annoyed and they made a complaint about noise.

Q.—What was the first you heard of it? A.—Somebody telephoned down.

Q.—Who were in the room? A.—I can't tell you. That was a long time ago.

Q.—Can you tell me who were the people in the next room? A.—No, not now.

Q.—Do you recall whether a man or a woman telephoned down? A.—No. I have no idea.

Q.—What was said? A.—There was complaint about people making noise.

Q.—Did you go up to the room? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Curtis? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was said by you to Mr. Curtis? A.—I told him to keep quiet as the people in the next room were complaining.

Q.—What did Curtis say to you? A.—He said he would keep quiet—that he was entertaining some friends.

Q.—Did you enter the room? A.—No.

Q.—Are you positive that you did not enter Mr. Curtis' room? A.—I am.

Q.—Was Corcoran in Curtis' room on that occasion? A.—I don't remember.

MEMORY IS CLOUDED

Q.—Did you see Corcoran on that evening? A.—Not to my knowledge —that was a long way back.

Q.—Are you positive you did not see him? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—I want you to tax your recollection? A.—I am unable to say.

Q.—What is your best recollection? Try to tell all that happened? A.—I do not remember seeing Corcoran.

Manager Spracklin had to visit the room of "Mr. Curtis" and tell him to be quiet. The neighbors were complaining.

Q.—Do you know Mrs. Theresa Duggan? A.—No, I do not.

Q.—I will call your attention to the lady at the extreme right. Have you ever seen her? A.—I have not.

Q.—Were you telephoned by Curtis that evening? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know a woman by the name of Purdy? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know whether or not on the evening of July 10 Mrs. Duggan and a woman by the name of Purdy registered at the Copley Square Hotel? A.—They might have without my knowing it.

Q.—Do you know of your knowledge whether they were registered or not?

Attorney Walsh objected and the question was excluded.

Q.—Do you know Peggy Purdy? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you know that Mrs. Duggan made a statement on November 7, 1921? A.—No.

WOMEN IN PARTY

Q.—Did you see that statement by any part of it in the newspapers? A.—Nm

Q.—If Mrs. Duggan stated in that statement that Mr. Curtis telephoned down to Mr. Spracklin and asked Mr. Spracklin what he could do would that refresh your recollection? A.—No.

Under further questioning by Prosecutor Hill, Manager Spracklin said Curtis occupied suite No. 34, one flight up.

Q.—Tell the jury all that you saw and heard in the room to which you went by reason of being called, I mean the room occupied by Mr. Curtis. A.—I asked Curtis to be quiet.

Q.—How many were in the room? A.—There were five or six in the party.

Q.—Were there any women there? A.—Yes, both men and women.

Q.—Did you know anybody else who was there besides Curtis? A.—No.

WIFE NOT PRESENT

Q.—Did you hear anything else said? A.—No.

Q.—Can you fix the date of the occurrence? A.—From memory only. I saw something in the newspapers and looked it up.

Q.—Where did you look? A.—In the register.

Q.—Did you find anything in the register relating to that matter? A.—Nothing.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that at the time in question, when Curtis was at your hotel, he was registered with a man under the name of Crowfutt and that there was a chauffeur registered, too. A.—Yes.

Q.—And Curtis' wife was not with him? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Mr. Crowfutt and Mr. Curtis had registered as occupying the same suite? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mrs. Curtis was not registered at that time. A.—I don't know.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you have stated that when you went to Curtis' room on or about July 10, you found Mr. Corcoran there?

Counsel for defense objected to this question and Mr. Hill withdrew it for the time being, he said.

Q.—Mr. Spracklin, were you at one time interested in the General Drug Company? A.—I was not interested in it.

Q.—You were not an officer? A.—No.

My name was there as an officer.

Q.—So the only extent to which you were interested was that your name was used as an officer? A.—Yes, my name only.

SIGNED THE CHECKS

Q.—What officer? A.—Treasurer.

Q.—At what time was that? A.—I cannot recollect the time.

Q.—During the period you were connected with the company as an officer were you in the habit of going there from time to time? A.—No, I only went there once in my life.

Q.—Who were the officers of the drug company you knew? A.—Why, there was Bottomly, Adams, Corcoran, Kane.

Q.—Was Lyons one, or Bearse, or Max Rothschild or Omar Kaidah? A. I never saw them there.

Q.—Are you sure, Mr. Spracklin, that you went to the drug company on Boylston street only once? A.—Absolutely positive.

Q.—Were you a director of the company? A.—I don't know what I was.

Q.—Did you have anything to do with the books of the company? A.—Nothing whatever.

Q.—Did you sign checks? A.—I did.

Q.—Where did you sign them? A.—They used to bring them to me at the hotel.

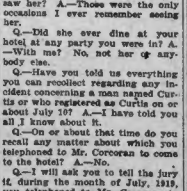
Q.—On what bank were the checks drawn? A.—I don't know.

Q.—How long did you act as treasurer? A.—I have no idea, not very long, a month or six weeks.

NEVER JOINED PARTIES

Q.—That was the only connection you had with the drug company? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know the name of any of the employes of the drug company? A.—I knew Miss Crocker (Mrs. Mary Louise Lyons). She brought the checks to me to sign.



Spracklin was treasurer of "Big Bill" Corcoran's drug company. His principal duty was signing checks. He couldn't recall the name of the company's bank.

Q.—Those were the only occasions on which you saw her? A.—Yes, those were the only occasions I ever met her as I remember.

Q.—I'll now ask you whether or not you are able to say definitely those were the only occasions you saw her? A.—Those were the only occasions I ever remember seeing her.

Q.—Did she ever dine at your hotel at any party you were in? A.—With me? No, not her or anybody else.

Q.—Have you told us everything you can recollect regarding any incident concerning a man named Curtis or who registered as Curtis on or about July 10? A.—I have told you all I know about it.

Q.—On or about that time do you recall any matter about which you telephoned to Mr. Corcoran to come to the hotel? A.—No.

Q.—I will ask you to tell the jury if, during the month of July, 1919, you telephoned to Mr. Corcoran to come to your hotel for any purpose? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Are you able to say definitely if you telephoned? A.—I did not telephone.

Q.—Directing your attention to the month of March, 1919, I will ask you if on the 13th of that month there was a William H. Hutchinson registered as a guest at your hotel? A.—Yes, I think there was.

Q.—Do you recall any incident or occurrence while he was there? A.—I do.

Q.—Tell the jury all you recall regarding that incident? A.—He was followed by a couple of detectives. They went up to his room and Mr. Hutchinson came out.

Q.—Do you recall anything else? A.—They came downstairs to me and inquired who he was.

Q.—Do you remember who they were? A.—No.

Q.—Could you identify them? A.—I don't know.

Q.—(Pointing to Detective John Larkin, whom he asked to stand): Is he one of them? A.—I don't know; I couldn't say.

Q.—(Pointing to Detective George Ellis) Is he one of them? A.—I don't remember. He might have been. I don't know.

Q.—Do you recall two detectives coming that day? A.—Yes.

DID NOT AID SLEUTHS

Q.—Do you recall any conversation you had with them? A.—One wanted to know who was in a certain room.

Q.—Who was the occupant of that room? A.—Hutchinson.

Q.—Did you tell the detective who he was? A.—No.

Q.—Did you give him any informa-

Spracklin saw a couple of "dicks" trailing Hutchinson, a ring victim. The "dicks" prowled around the Copley Square Hotel, but Spracklin didn't aid their [illegible] tion? A.—Not much.

Q.—What next did they do? A.—I think they went out.

Q.—How did you know they were following Mr. Hutchinson? A.—They came down and asked me who was occupying his room.

Prosecutor Hill exhibited the famous key to No. 45, which was occupied by William Hutchinson and a married woman on the night of one of the raids at the Copley square hotel.

Q.—I ask you to look at this key and to tell me what it is? A.—It is the key to one of the rooms in the hotel.

Q.—I ask you if that is the key to the room occupied by Mr. Hutchinson? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Didn't Mr. Hutchinson occupy Room No. 45 on that occasion?

Spracklin looked at Mr. Hill and declined to answer.

Attorney Hill—I asked you a question? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Will your books show who occupied that room? Will the register for 1919 show it? A.—No.

Q.—What became of the register of 1919? A.—We keep them a short time and then destroy them. That is destroyed.

Q.—Did you ever give that key to Mr. William J. Corcoran? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever learn that that key was in the possession of the detectives? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever know that that key was missing from the hotel? A.—No.

Q.—Is there any information you could give the jury regarding this key?

Q.—Had Mr. Hutchinson ever been there to your hotel before that occasion? A.—I don't know.

Q.—What is your best recollection? A.—I don't know. He might have been there dining.

Q.—Do you recall whether he came to the hotel alone or with someone? A.—No, I don't know anything about that.

Spracklin answered a great many of the questions with this reply: "I don't know. That is I can't say, I don't remember."

Miss Bartelme Elected
Other Good Voting
"You Feed Them"
We Disappoint Zangwill

Current Events
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company

MISS MARY BARTELME is elected circuit judge, in Chicago. "Practical politicians" said Chicago men would never vote to put a woman over them as judge. But they underestimated the average Chicago man's respect for good women.

Chicago is to be congratulated upon setting a good example to other cities. And especially to be congratulated are the earnest men and women that worked for the good result.

THE VOTERS of New York State on Tuesday voted overwhelmingly to give the soldiers their bonus, by an amendment to the State Constitution. New York city voted also to increase the pay of policemen and firemen, and voted fifty millions for better hospitals. The people are generous.

They voted down an amendment that would have given the water power of the State to privateers, with rich graft for public officials.

It is a good idea to let the public decide for itself, although politicians consider that most unwise.

FRANK FALOS, a crippled laborer, takes his four young children to the State Workmen's Compensation Bureau, and says, "You feed them, I can't."

Ten thousand voices will cry, "What, you can't feed them? You must feed them. It's your duty." To that everybody says "Amen." Yet the crippled father would get no reward, except a quiet conscience, for feeding those children, whereas the community in general would get the value of their work.

Parents are working for the nation, and supremely wise Providence makes them eager to do it, glad to sacrifice themselves for the coming generation.

JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU left his five children, one at a time, on the steps of the foundling asylum, with no identification. No one knows what became of them, or what value they might have had for the world, had they had a chance. Probably they were included, if they survived, in the crowd that howled around the guillotine a little later.

THERE AGAIN, you see, Providence working most mysteriously. This man who abandoned his children to their fate in infancy, and whom you would call the vilest of fathers, wrote "Emile," the best book on education ever written. It is not given to every one both to preach and practice.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL lectures on "The Truth About America." Pilate asked, "What is truth?" and how can Mr. Zangwill be sure that he has it to tell? His co-religionists declare that he is far from the truth in his views on Zionism. If he cannot judge Jerusalem after a life of study, how can he judge America, in two weeks?

HIS LITERARY brother, Israel Heine, speaking of America, exclaimed, "Oh, freedom, thou wicked dream." when he heard that an American mob tarred and feathered a clergyman for allowing his white daughter to marry a black man. Americans believe it would take more than such a mob to make freedom a wicked dream.

IN THE course of his lecture Mr. Zangwill announces that Americans lack "The honor, the justice, dignity and efficiency that exist in England." He discovers also that American lack humor, and have no shame, but on the whole they are amusing "and worth the price of admission." The Ku Klux Klan he calls an "exaggerated Boy Scout movement." He is advised in friendly fashion to confine himself to theorizing about that, refraining from actual experiment.

"NEW HIGH levels for futures in cotton." So reads the market report, telling of a sensational rise at the opening of yesterday's market. December contracts touched 34 yesterday. You may recall the prediction here that cotton would pass 35. Neither a buyer nor a seller, he, is the motto of this writer, who never bought or sold a pound of raw cotton.

But conditions are plain.

CONSIDER how the demand for cotton must grow from year to year. As prosperity comes back to the world, that demand will far outstrip all production. You think of cotton in women's dresses. That's a small item. Automobile tires will take more than dresses. The excellently written, interesting advertising of the Portland Cement Association tells you that the demand for cement bags alone uses enough cotton cloth to make a skirt each year for every woman and girl in the United States—a strip of cotton 30 inches wide, 126,000 miles long.

GEORGE B. SHAW predicts "world-wide prohibition of strong alcoholic spirits." Such prohibition, classing whiskey, gin, brandy and other alcoholic poisons, with cocaine, morphine, etc., could be enforced, and that would mean temperance, infinitely better than present day prohibition, which means bootleg whiskey. If spirits could be done away with, there would be no need to worry about wine and beer. Before spirits were first made, commercially, two or three hundred years ago, the world had no serious alcoholic problems, although our ancestors drank, industriously.

CORRESPONDENTS report that Indiana is controlled, politically, by the Ku Klux Klan, with that control, already strong in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, now spreading into Ohio and other States.

EVERYTHING depends on how control is acquired. If through the ballot box, no one may complain. Vox populi, supreme lex esto, holds good whether you like the vox of the moment or not.

MANY BELIEVE that popular government should be conducted apart from any secret society or religious organization. But if secret society or religion can get the votes, that settles it. Those that don't like it must get votes enough to change it. The 1924 candidates are going to be puzzled, explaining their positions on the Klan. You may notice their deep silence on that topic.

Girls Are Traffic Cops

Miss Stout was one of the six society girls who directed traffic on Fifth avenue, New York.

New York, Nov. 8.—Six pretty society girls, all members of the Junior League, and all attired in natty riding habits that "would knock your eye out," as one New Yorker put it, forgot the butterfly whirl of society life and directed traffic and "mere man" on Fifth avenue during the busy noon hour.

It was primarily a publicity stunt intended to focus attention on the work of the National Child Labor Committee.

The debutantes were the Misses Peggy Stout, Edith McCoon, Betty Strong, Betty Beasley, Catherine Gurnee, Margaret Henley and Peggy Powers. All are on the upper rungs of New York's society ladder.

TELLS JURY STOKES IS A 'FIEND'

Wife's Lawyer Continues Castigation of Aged Husband in His Argument

New York, Nov. 8.—Samuel Untermyer, chief of counsel for Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, continued his arguments to the jury today. He did not let up in his castigation of W. E. D. Stokes, the husband-plaintiff.

Untermyer declared today that he was willing to "stand or fall" on the evidence that the defendant never was in the apartment of Edgar T. Wallace, the co-respondent.

"This evidence against Mrs. Stokes," he said, "is nothing more than a myth concocted by a harman fiend."

W. E. D. Stokes

Mrs. Stokes

STOKES ASSAILED.

Untermyer assailed Stokes for not taking the witness stand to testify against his wife.

"He has remained with sealed lips allowing his fouls to bear the brunt of the perjury," he charged.

He then attacked the Stokes witnesses, contrasting them with those testifying for Mrs. Stokes.

Stokes' charges against his wife and Edgar T. Wallace, the co-respondent, were declared by Untermyer to be ridiculous.

"Do you think men of the standing of the co-respondent in this case would or would afford to open affairs with a married woman?" he asked. "Men don't have such affairs openly, as Stokes would have you believe; at least there would be secrecy."

"SCHOOL OF PERJURY."

The lawyer then directed his fire against Hattie Johnson, negro detective, whose boarding house sheltered Stokes' negro witnesses during the trial.

"Every one of these witnesses is a graduate of her school of perjury," Untermyer said.

The Johnson woman was ejected from the courtroom twice after Untermyer had charged her with coaching witnesses on the stand by a system of signals.

Discussing the specific charges of misconduct Stokes had made against his wife and Wallace, Untermyer declared that the husband's evidence, even if admitted, proved nothing.

"We could admit, if we so desired, that Mrs. Stokes visited Wallace at his Fifth avenue apartment—that would have neither been ground for a divorce or crime.

"But we have proved these charges of the arch-fiend Stokes were lies in every detail and that Mrs. Stokes never in her life set foot in Wallace's home."

DIPLOMAT SCORED.

Untermyer indicated he would take some action against Stokes, in connection with the alleged forgeries after the trial ends.

"I would be neglectful of my duty as an officer of the court if I did not bring this man Stokes to justice after you men of the jury have returned a verdict against him."

Twenty minutes were spent by Untermyer in an attack on Horace G. Knowles, former U. S. Minister to Serbia and Rumania, who testified he saw Mrs. Stokes at Wallace's New York apartment. He accused Knowles of "hoping for favors" from Stokes. Stokes and Knowles were both interested in the Chester concession in Turkey, Untermyer charged.

The funeral of former Judge Jabez Fox of the Superior Court will be held in Mt. Auburn Chapel Cemetery Chapel at noon tomorrow.

He served on the Superior Court bench for twenty years, receiving his first appointment from Governor Murray Crane in 1900. He retired on account of poor health in 1921.

STILLMAN CONFESSION 'FORGERY'

Wife's Lawyer Declares Letter Was Once Thrown Out of Court

New York, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.)—Mrs. Anne U. Stillman did not write the so-called "confession" letter submitted in the appeal of James A. Stillman, her banker husband, John F. Brennan, chief counsel for Mrs. Stillman, declared today.

"Mrs. Stillman's affidavit, submitted when the case was tried, and on file with the Supreme Court, affirms this letter, like many others in the case, is a forgery," Brennan said.

The "confession" letter is unsigned. It is a lengthy, misspelled epistle, and contains such lines as "Fred loved me, and I was his," mentioning also the coming of "My Indian baby."

The letter was ruled out before by Daniel J. Gleason, referee in the hearing. He decided Baby Guy was the son of Stillman and not of Fred Beauvais, Indian guide named as co-respondent.

The mysterious "confession" letter purported to have been written by Mrs. Stillman to her husband, that her attorneys up to the present time successfully kept from the court records, came out in the appellate division of the Supreme Court at Brooklyn when Cornelius J. Sullivan, attorney for Mr. Stillman, filed an

YOUNG STINNES SEES VAST OIL FIELDS

Oklahoma, Nov. 8.—Hugo Stinnes, Jr., son of the noted German capitalist, enjoying a short business trip in the United States, got the thrill of his life today as he rode in the palatial private car of Harry F. Sinclair, head of the Sinclair Oil Company, through the vast southwestern oil fields. Reports from the oil fields indicate that Stinnes' visit may have an important bearing on the future investment of German marks in America's oil industry.

PINCHOT BARS BOOZE SCENE IN MOVIES

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—A flash-breaking episode was cut out of a moving picture scene by the State Board of Moving Picture Censors, after Governor Pinchot warned that pictures showing violations of the Eighteenth Amendment should be banned. Harry L. Knapp, one of the State censors, told the Civic Club that the Governor is determined to carry his dryness to even picture "hooch."

U.S. WORK STARTED ON CHESTER CONCESSIONS

Paris, Nov. 8.—The Ottoman American Development Company, which holds the Chester concessions, has already begun work in Turkey, in accordance with its contract, it was made known today by Colonel Clayton Kennedy, representative of the company, who has returned from Asia Minor. He denied reports that the concessions had been offered to the German magnate, Hugo Stinnes, and that the Turkish government had cancelled the concessions. He said he believed the latter story was propagated by continental bankers, hoping to prevent American development of Turkey.

LOVE CONFESSION EXPOSED

MRS. STILLMAN AND BABY GUY

Denied a divorce after a bitter and protracted legal battle, James A. Stillman, New York banker, now brings forth an alleged confession written by his wife in which she admits Fred Beauvais, an Indian, is father of her child, Guy. The paternity of the child was fought out in the divorce case and the court ruled that Stillman was the father.

airship and land it in the United States after a trans-Atlantic voyage to add to its prestige.

The Zeppelin rights and patents were recently bought by a group of United States capitalists.

The German officials of the company are anxious for construction of Zeppelins to continue at Akron without an untoward incident to the new balloons being completed at Friedrichshafen.

It is understood the officials of the German company are ready to sacrifice the ZR-3 rather than allow it to fall into hands other than those of the Americans who contracted for it.

If the Nationalists make an actual attempt to seize the balloon, the officials of the Zeppelin company may go so far as to wreck the machinery to frustrate them.

Failure of the Zeppelin employes at Friederichshafen to complete the ZR-3 in time to allow it to start on the long flight to America this August, has made it highly questionable whether the dirigible will ever cross the Atlantic.

Germans Reject Demand for Allied Military Rule

Berlin, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—Germany has rejected the French demand for resumption of inter-allied military control by a commission in Berlin "without hindrance from the Berlin government."

Nationalist newspapers express fear that the Germans will not be able to protect the billed army officers.

Tension ran high here today. The air was filled with rumors of an impending coup.

The Nationalists and other opponents of the Ebert-Stresemann government are reported to have set Friday, the anniversary of the 1918 revolution, as the date for an uprising.

Heavy forces of police patrol the streets.

Separatists in the Rhine palatinate have occupied Landau and Neustadt public buildings.

Both are under control of French occupational forces.

The "jinx" first got in its work when the Esperante, which brought the trophy back to Gloucester in 1920, was wrecked on Sable Island in June, 1921.

A year later the Puritan, built by Gloucester men as a cup contender, was lost in almost the same spot.

The Henry Ford, which lost to the Bluenose last year, went aground just after her launching at Essex and pounded on the sandbars for a week before she was floated.

The Columbia was rammed by a French beam trawler off Sable Island last Spring.

The Howard herself was in difficulties in the elimination races with the Ford off Gloucester last year. In one race she carried away her topmast.

BEAUTY TO WED IN FUNERAL ROMANCE

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 8.—Miss Elizabeth Edwards, nineteen-year-old brunette, who portrayed "Miss Vineland" for two successive seasons during the Atlantic City Fall pageant in 1922 and 1923, is engaged to marry Philip St. George Prime of Cleveland.

Prince came to Vineland ten days ago to attend the funeral of a relative. At the funeral services he met Miss Edwards, and the courtship followed.

FRANCE AGAINST DICTATORSHIP

LEGION PLANS BIG PARADE ON NOVEMBER 11

Final plans for the observance of Armistice Day were completed at a conference today at Legion headquarters between General Clarence R. Edwards and members of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Invitations have been extended to Cardinal O'Connell and Bishop Lawrence to attend the mass meeting following the parade, which will start at Dock square and end at the Cadet Armory, where Senator Lodge is expected to deliver an address.

Arrangements for the participation of Gold Star mothers in the parade in observance have been completed under the direction of the Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross.

An effort will be made to have members of the R. O. T. C. in local colleges take part in the parade.

GIRL BANDIT IS SEIZED WITH PAL

Chicago, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—A running gun fight between detectives and occupants of a stolen car, believed to have figured in seven holdups today, ended in the capture of Anna Baron and John Stankis, one of her four companions.

The three others fled on foot from the bullet-riddled car, returning the officers' fire as they ran.

The girl, who has a police record, is eighteen, pretty and was fashionably dressed.

Stankis has confessed his part in the holdup. He said the driver of the car was wounded.

Anna was taken to the detention home after her arrest. She was arrested recently with three youths on a charge of grand larceny, but was released after serving but two weeks of her sentence.

COOLIDGE TO SEEK BIG SUM

Powerful Fleet of Revenue Cutters Urged to Chase Rum-Runners

Washington, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.—Congress will be asked to appropriate $20,000,000 to provide a powerful fleet of new revenue cutters and motor boats to chase rum smugglers.

The Coolidge plan calls for more than 200 additional boats to be operated under the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guards' recommendations for new ships and additional personnel, are supplemental to regular budget estimates of $11,000,000 for ordinary operations.

New rum boat chasers, under the larger appropriations planned, will include:

Twenty additional seagoing revenue cutters, of the cruiser type, to serve as bases for large fleets of motor boats.

Two hundred and three motor boats of the cabin-cruiser type, for use in shallow waters.

Twenty-one small motor boats for emergency use at Coast Guard stations.

With the approval of President Coolidge officials supervising prohibition enforcement will ask Congress to finance this expansion of Coast Guard operations. The chasing of rum smugglers will become the major function of this branch of the service.

The government's plan will be to acquire the additional vessels as possible, either by purchase or new construction.

Star Bombs Used in Pursuit of Rum Ship

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8.—Star bombs such as were used in the World War were shot into the midnight air along the Jersey coast in search for rum runners, Prohibition Director Chamberlain announced today. The bombs revealed two or three boats, but that these were not captured.

M'MILLAN GOING TO POLE SAYS RADIO FROM ARCTIC

Winnipeg, Nov. 8.—Every member of the Donald B. MacMillan exploration party in the Arctic region, is in good health and the expedition is not in danger from icebergs, according to a radio message picked up here from the expedition in the North.

Dr. Donald B. MacMillan

"Reports that we have been and are in danger from icebergs are entirely wrong," stated the message. "We are perfectly safe, quite comfortable and all on board the Bowdoin are in good health."

Another message sent from Winter quarters eleven degrees from the North Pole, stated that Dr. MacMillan was optimistic about reaching the Pole after leaving the Winter quarters and predicted that the expedition would be a success.

Portland, Me., Nov. 8.—Backers of Donald B. MacMillan here said today the expedition was organized for exploration of Ellesmereland, that there was no intention of going to the North Pole, and that he could not attempt it because of lack of equipment and a supporting party.

PLAN MERGER OF U. S.-BRITISH CEMENT CO.'S

London, Nov. 8.—A story in the Daily Mail that the Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers, Ltd., had passed into the hands of the newly organized Associated Anglo-Atlantic Corporation, has caused a stir in financial and commercial circles.

The secretary of the Portland denied the story, but admitted the Portland directors had long been aware of the purchase of stock by a financial group with which the directors had been in "friendly communication."

The Anglo-Atlantic company is reported to have sought affiliations with American Cement interests. In this connection it is stated that Philip Nash, chairman of the Anglo-Atlantic, and others concerned, are now on their way to the United States.

In statements attributed to persons interested in the Anglo-Atlantic reference is made to the immense growth of the American cement industry in late years. It is represented as having increased 25 fold in the United States, while the industry in Great Britain has made practically no expansion.

KEANS FOUND GUILTY OF STEALING LEATHER

Guy L. Keans of No. 65 Middlesex street, Somerville, has been found guilty by a jury in the Third Session of the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Dubuque of the larceny of twenty-three cases of leather belonging to the Ayer Tanning Company.

Guy L. Keans

The leather disappeared from Commercial wharf to which it had been sent for shipment to a firm in Riga, Esthonia. The vessel that received the consignment was sunk of Nova Scotia, and it was found that the cargo did not include the leather.

Later the police discovered that a considerable portion of the leather had been sent to New York, and the balance stored in the cellar of the father-in-law of Keans in Somerville.

Germany Raises Rail Fares to Highest in World

Berlin, Nov. 7.—Germany is now the dearest country in the world in which to travel. From only 85 cents for an all-night ride of 400 miles, with a first-class sleeping compartment, the rate has now been raised to eight and a quarter cents per mile first class and a fraction over four cents a mile second class. As a consequence, trains are running all but empty. The wages of conductors are less than $2 a week.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN SOMERVILLE RAID

Prohibition sleuths swooped down on the "blind pig" establishment at No. 1 Waverly street, Somerville, burst through the door, seized nine gallons of moonshine hidden beneath a counter and arrested Daniel H. Allen, 37, clerk of No. 46 Parker street, Charlestown. Police allege Allearn broke whiskey glasses and bottles on the floor as they forced their way in.

4 WOMEN ARE ELECTED AS LAWMAKERS

New York, Nov. 8.—Richmond, Va., in latest official election returns today, reported the election of two women to the House of Delegates, who will be the first to sit in the Virginia Assembly. Mrs. Sarah Lee Fain and Mrs. R. A. Henderson, both Democrats, were elected from Russell and Buchanan counties.

Chicago reported the election of Miss Mary M. Harieleme as a judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County —the first time in the history of Illinois that a woman has been elevated to a court of such high distinction. Miss Barieleme led the Republican county ticket.

Among the municipal judges elected at Cleveland, O., on nearly complete returns to serve six-year terms is Miss Mary B. Grossman. If successful, Miss Grossman is the second woman to be elected judge in that city and the first woman on the municipal bench. Mrs. Virginia Greene was elected a member of the board of education.

We wish to thank G. C. J. for the above information. We appreciate the interest shown by this party in our column.

Food Query Editor:

While on my vacation, used Oak Hill Salad Dressing, made in Brockton, Mass., packed by E. C. Holl & Co. I wonder if you would please tell me where I could get it? Are there any stores in Allston, Mass., where it is sold? It's very good. I have been a reader of the Boston American for years.

Allston, Mass. J. A. H.

Below you will find letter received from E. C. Hall & Co. in reference to above inquiry: "We acknowledge your letter of November 2, asking if any store in Allston or vicinity handled Oak Hill Salad Dressing. We regret to tell you no. We have no store selling this product north of Quincy. Would like to have you refer this party inquiring to us and we will try to find some way of supplying them."

Food Query Editor:

I am anxious to know where I can secure "Namco" crabmeat in Boston.

MRS. I. G. S.

Somerville, Mass.

Below you will find letter from F. V. Karvatz, No. 185 Devonshire street, Boston, in reference to above inquiry: "We wish to advise that you will find on sale at Porter's Market, Inc., No. 151 Summer street, Boston, a fresh supply of "Namco" brand crabmeat. We are also at the present time running a demonstration in the Grocery Department of the Houghton & Dutton Co., Boston. We know that you will find 'Namco" crabmeat on sale at both of the above stores."

Food Query Editor:

I just moved to Boston from Providence. I would like to know where I can secure the very popular bacon and hams known there as Sperry & Barnes? I believe these goods are put up in Connecticut somewhere. Could I secure same in Boston?

MRS. J. I. E.

Chelsea, Mass.

Sperry & Barnes goods are put up in New Haven, Ct., and we know of only one place in Boston where you can secure their hams and bacon and that is Weston-Thurston Co., No. 22 New Faneuil Hall Market.

Food Query Editor:

I have been told that the Curtice Bros. people, who put up Blue Label Ketchup, also put up some wonderful peaches and pears in cans. If this is so, I have never been able to locate a store that carries it. Everybody has their Blue Label Ketchup, but nobody seems to know about their canned goods. Could you help me in this matter?

MRS. C. E. R.

Watertown, Mass.

Curtice Bros., of Rochester, N. Y., put up a complete line of very fancy canned goods in addition to their Blue Label Ketchup. You can secure the above canned goods at Upham's Corner Market, Dorchester; Manhattan Market, Cambridge, or B. F. Arnold, Worcester. We personally know these goods are of the finest quality.

Food Query Editor:

Where can Kingham's Canadian Style Bacon be purchased in Boston?

MRS. W. I. D.

Back Bay, Boston.

We presume when you ask for Kingham's Canadian Style Bacon you mean their loin bacon with the rub in smoked. If this is the piece of goods you are looking for, you can secure same in the following markets: Samuel Holmes & Co., No. 12 Faneuil Hall Market; Porter's Market, Summer street, and Weston & Thurston, in the New Faneuil Hall Market.

Food Query Editor:

I have been told that the concern that puts up the celebrated Ferris Hams over in New York are now putting up a sliced bacon in one-pound boxes. I would like to know where I could secure same, as I have always had a great liking for Ferris products.

MRS. E. M. C

Waltham, Mass.

The F. A. Ferris Co. have just put on the market a sliced bacon put up in ¼ lb., ½ lb. and one lb. boxes, under the name of "Grill Room Sliced Bacon," and you can secure this brand of goods at H. L. Morrill & Co., Inc., No. 11 Merchants Row. Also at the M. F. Foley Co., corner Friend and Union streets.

CLOSE CONFERENCE JANUARY 7 ON RAIL CONSOLIDATION PLAN

Washington, Nov. 8.—Final arrangements were made today for the opening of the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into the possibility of railroad consolidation in the United States, January 7 being set for hearing oral arguments of counsel for railroads.

General notice was given that between now and that time all the states, municipalities and shippers' organizations interested may file briefs.

At hearings held during the past eighteen months the commission has elicited views of practically all railroad executives and of others interested in the proposals made in the transportation act to allow the consolidation of all the major railroads into eighteen or twenty great merger corporations.

The commission has prepared its own tentative plan for the conduct of the consolidations, but has no authority under present law to enforce it.

TRUCK HAS ITS OWN WAY FOR BRIEF TIME

Speaking in the language of tonsorial artists, Fred Uriot of No. 194 Maple street, West Roxbury, had a close shave.

Early today he was driving a car along South street, Roslindale. The car skidded. Fred yanked the wheel around and the machine headed for the undertaking parlors of L. H. Sullivan. Fred missed the parlors by a red hair and crashed through the plate glass window of the empty store next door.

U. S. SENATOR IS NAMED IN VETS' GRAFT CHARGES

Washington, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—The Senatorial investigation of the Veterans' Bureau today was directed into the alleged use of "political influence" in the administration of the government aid to disabled soldiers.

Special agents for the committee were directed to investigate these charges:

1—The use of political influence in obtaining awards of government contracts for supplies.

2—The "playing of favorites" in awarding compensation due to pressure from prominent politicians, and—

3—Efforts of unnamed individuals to block the investigation.

Although these charges have been made to the committee in a number of instances, no actual proof has as yet been submitted.

It was learned the committee directed that further information be obtained to be produced when the inquiry's public hearings are resumed next week. It asked particularly for names of individuals attempting to block the investigation.

The committee was particularly concerned about charges of political influence in the award of a contract to the Continental Chemical Company of Waseka, Ill. This company obtained a contract for $70,344 worth of floor polish, said to be enough to last the bureau 100 years. First payments under the contract were made to John Owens, Indiana political leader.

The name of a United States Senator was made in connection with this deal. The committee has ordered a full investigation of the transaction.

—PALMOLIVE— After Shaving Talc

That well-groomed look

Professional men and successful business men—doctors, bankers, lawyers—know that a clean, fresh, well-groomed appearance is a valuable asset. Palmolive After Shaving Talc gives this fresh, clean look. The after shave "shine" must be removed. And yet a man's face should not look "powdered." This new talc for men meets both important requirements.

WE have perfected a new creation—of especial benefit to men's faces. This offers you a chance to try it—almost without cost.

It is a powder for men, providing two unusual features:

First: It is invisible. Men don't like powder to show.

Second: It is a scientific combatant of skin roughness—keeps your skin smooth—improves your appearance.

Removes that after shave shine

And leaves your skin fresh as a daisy; clean-looking and comfortable. Gives that well-groomed look successful men all have.

Not an ordinary talc—Palmolive After Shaving Talc is essentially a man's powder.

We believe you'll say it's the best talc you have ever used. If we weren't sure of this we wouldn't even ask you to try it. And that is exactly what we urge you to do—today.

Take advantage of special offer —Good this week only

Thousands of men have already turned to it. And have thanked us. Go today to your druggist. Take advantage of the 3-way offer above. Everyone knows Palmolive Soap; millions of men use our Shaving Cream. Palmolive After Shaving Talc is an achievement equally important for men.

Try it. In one week, note results—the clearness of your skin, the smoothness, the wonderful feel after shaving.

Wives and Mothers:

If your menfolks overlook this extraordinary offer, remind them of it.

Or do the buying for them. Their thanks will repay you—for these are comforts every man enjoys.

The bargain is unusual. And it is for a limited time only. Go to any druggist listed here.

'WALTON CAN'T BUST US,' K.K.K. LEADER SAYS

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—The silence maintained by the Oklahoma K. K. K. since the lifting of martial law was broken today, when N. C. Jewett, wizard of the organization in this State, declared emphatically that Gov. Jack Walton cannot break the K. K. K. in Oklahoma or any other State.

Gov. Walton.

"The K. K. K. is not the issue in this State," Jewett said, in denying Governor Walton's assertion that the Klan is backing a conspiracy to cause his removal from office.

"Walton is to be tried for malfeasance in office. That's all there is to that. The trial is a case between the State of Oklahoma and Walton."

Jewett declared every effort had been made to drag the Klan bodily into Oklahoma's recent troubles.

"Walton's efforts to drag in the Klan failed. His martial law resulted in nothing. Practically none was convicted by the military courts. Walton never intended any convicted man should go to prison. The Klan still remains in Oklahoma."

Jewett declared that the K. K. K. would maintain a "hands off" policy during the Walton impeachment trial.

Bastrop, La., Nov. 8 (AP)—Judge Odom overruled the motion of the defense in the Morehouse misdemeanor trials that he disqualify himself. The defense then gave notice that it would immediately apply to the Supreme Court for writs of prohibition and certiorari. The defense had charged that the court was biased and prejudiced.

AUTO 1ST, WIFE SECOND, SHE TELLS COURT

It is the same old story between husband and wife which brought the divorce case of Flora Hemnet and Victor Hemnet before Judge Chamberlain of the East Cambridge Probate Court.

He said she nagged, found fault with him, was not home to receive him and showed him nothing of the care of a wife.

She said he cared more for his automobile than he did for her. "He never addressed me as 'dear wife' or anything of that sort," she replied. "There was no affection and he wouldn't support me." Mrs. Hemnet sued her husband for divorce charging him with cruel and abusive treatment and failure to provide for herself and their two children. She asked custody of the boy and girl.

Too much dabbling in stocks was another reason for Hemnet's inability to maintain a household, the wife told the court. Hemnet was a waiter in a Boston hotel.

Judge Chamberlain reserved decision.

$50,000 A YEAR FOR YOUNG MAN ON CROOKED PATH

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Harry Hayden, twenty-four years old, who through alleged fraudulent activities, is said by police to have obtained more than $100,000 in the last two years, was arrested by detectives after they had chased him from a hotel to the shores of Lake Michigan.

No charge was placed against him.

Among those whom Hayden is alleged to have defrauded is Miss Ollie Grossman, said to be a buyer for a Chicago dress establishment, who, the police say, met Hayden at French Lick, Ind., eighteen months ago, and later transferred $25,000 worth of Liberty bonds to Hayden in New York in exchange for stock after he had talked to her of oil investments.

BANDITS WRECK BANK, ESCAPE WITH $12,000

Ogden, Kan., Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—The State Bank of Ogden was robbed today by four or five bandits who escaped in an auto after obtaining $2,000 in currency and $10,000 in bonds, and nearly wrecking the bank with five charges of nitro-glycerine. Both vaults and safe were blown after entrance was gained to the building with a crowbar.

Citizens were aroused but all save the town marshal feared to venture out. One shot was fired at the marshal.

ARREST CAPTAIN AND CREW OF WRECKED RUM-RUNNER

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—The liquor-laden British schooner Pilot, bound from Nassau to Halifax, which went aground near Bogue Inlet, N. C., Tuesday night, has pounded to pieces in the surf and is a complete wreck, according to reports received here today.

Much of her cargo, consisting of 31 barrels and 250 cases of whisky, was saved by Federal prohibition agents. The master of the ship is under arrest along with five members of his crew.

The scene of the wreck is a lonely forsaken spot on the bleak Carolina coast.

Betty Alden Says Society Will "Do Its Stuff" at Coming Festival

By BETTY ALDEN.

SOCIETY will have to "do its stuff," and do it well, at the Shakespeare festival to be held a week from tomorrow night.

Courteney Guild as the great bard himself, statuesque Mrs. S. Parker Bremer as "Queen Elizabeth" and Mrs. Walter C. Baylies and Mrs. Harry H. Thorndike as the immortal lovers, "Romeo and Juliet," are only a few of the society folk who will portray their Thespian talent on that occasion.

Professional competition will be offered by footlight stars playing Boston that week. They will present "Richard III."

The festival, it will be held at the Copley-Plaza, is being staged for the benefit of the Frances Jewett Repertory Club and the Repertory Theatre. A host of prominent matrons are interested in the affair and there is sure to be a large attendance.

A number of the buds of the season are taking part in the festival, many of them in the various dances. Among the latter is Miss Carryl Sargent, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sargent of Commonwealth avenue.

MR. AND MRS. BORDEN COVEL are giving a tea this afternoon at their Brookline residence to introduce their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Covel. The pourers include the Misses Louise Thayer, Frances S. Dewart, Jane Sherer and Miss Helene Ellsworth.

MISS CARRYL SARGENT

Miss Sargent is among the attractive buds of 1923-24. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sargent. She will take part in the Shakespeare festival on the 16th.

PASTOR DEFIES OUSTING; EATS IN CHURCH

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 8.—An effort to "dispossess" the Rev. Thomas Collett, who has been preaching regularly in a City Island Protestant Episcopal meeting house, despite padlocks and "no services today" signs on the doors, was made in Supreme Court by counsel for Christ Church of Pelham.

The Rev. Mr. Collett, the complainant said, formerly was assistant rector of Christ Church and had been assigned to conduct services in various of the church's parish houses, of which the City Island place is one. Recently, however, the Rev. Mr. Collett's contract expired, it was said, and was not renewed, yet he refused to discontinue his preaching, claiming he had been appointed by the bishop.

"Three weeks ago," said counsel for Christ Church, "Mr. Collett insisted upon holding services in the parish house as City Island. He even refused to leave the church when the morning services had been completed. He stayed in there all day and his wife brought his dinner, passing it through a window to him."

GHOSTS BALK AT LAW LIBRARY AND $2,500

New York, Nov. 8.—Mrs. Elizabeth A. Tomson, a Chicago psychic, who came here to capture the $2,500 prize offered by the Scientific American for genuine phenomena, will disturb no spirits of the dead.

The stage at the Scientific American office was all set for Mrs. Tomson, when her husband, Dr. Allen Tomson, appeared at the offices.

Just one brief glance at the law library—appointed as the place of seance by J. Malcolm Bird, one of the investigators—convinced the doctor that, like the subway or a goldfish bowl, it lacked privacy.

Only two days ago Mrs. Tomson stepped into a cabinet in a private house where privacy naturally was to be had, and produced a regular parade of ghosts—none, maybap, a trifle shy on grammar and all decidedly vague in substance, but psychic for all that.

"Mrs. Tomson and her family have been in New York for some ten days," said Mr. Bird, "giving sittings in private homes and public places.

"Their first appearance before the investigating committee of the Scientific American was scheduled for last night. Just before the scheduled time Dr. Tomson, the medium's husband, came to my office and asked to see the room where we proposed to sit. Though it had already been praised as extremely suitable by another member of the medium's entourage, he objected violently to it the instant he got inside it.

"His first claim was that there was no place for the medium to be disrobed. He then shifted his ground and asserted that the room was altogether too public in character and appearance and lacked the psychic touch.

"The room in question is the law library of Messrs. Mund, Anderson & Munn, which has been used on previous occasions, and the claim that it had the atmosphere of a 'public place' struck me as peculiarly absurd.

"Dr. Tomson finally stated categorically that no psychic could get returns in this room, and that Mrs. Tomson would not try."

After a night's good sleep the body's strength is at its peak; then toward noon the human engine begins to slow down until late in the day it is rapidly on the wane. Various industrial plants have proved this statement by serving employees coffee in the noon or mid-afternoon hour. A cup of White House Coffee in the morning—a cup at noon—and another cup at dinner will take care of this physical wear without harmful reaction.

The First Name on the List

Everyone has one name upon his Christmas list which outranks all the others in importance. The hardest gift to decide upon, it should be the first one selected.

For a young matron we suggest the new earrings of unusual length and satisfactory twinkles, or a necklace of seed pearls and onyx that is Parisian in its smartness.

For the young girl a link bracelet or a little-finger ring is a welcome gift. She appreciates, too, a fitted suitcase or bag to use on her trips to college proms and gay week-ends.

Men may be well pleased with a number of possible gifts from our shop. We are the sole Boston agents for the John Brumfit pipes, so beloved by those who possess them. The ostrich cigar and cigarette cases are both good-looking and unusual.

Many men have carried their present watches so long that they wish for a new one. The models nowadays are so different from those of a few years ago that they secretly feel old-fashioned.

These are gift suggestions, chosen at random from the many we could make. If you will spend a little time in our various departments we will gladly show you many charming things.

SOCIETY WOMAN'S NAME IS NOW REVEALED IN CLUB SPY CASE

HUSBAND ADMITS WIFE IS INVOLVED IN SCANDAL

Eve Bureau, go to the home of Dieters with E. M. Jeffe, wealthy clubman, search Dieters, take him forcibly to police headquarters, and there give him the "third degree" for three hours?

2—What connection did Detective Alfred Glynn, nephew of former Governor Martin Glynn, have with the harassing of Dieters by Jeffe?

3—On what authority did police order the arrest of Dieters at Blackstone, Mass., and bring him back to New York?

4—Why were the instructions of Mr. Dodd that Dieters be brought directly to him upon his arrival in New York, ignored, and Dieters taken instead to police headquarters until Mr. Dodd demanded he be turned over to him?

WIFE MADE NO CHARGE.

Dieters was under arrest for "abandonment," on the ground that he had forsaken his wife. As she never had made a charge against him the cause of his arrest was not clear. After he was brought before District-Attorney Dodd and the latter had talked to him for some time, he was freed, and went to his home. Dodd then said Dieters had never been under arrest. Dieters, how ever, said he had. And that's that. The fact remains that Dieters is at home, but out of a job.

Dieters, the diabolic master plotter, playing his moves with such uncanny foresight and strategy that by his mere disappearance his opponents were thrown into hopeless confusion, evaporated entirely.

A DIFFERENT DIETERS.

In his place was revealed an entirely different Dick Dieters, a frightened pawn, dodging desperately from square to square, fearful every moment that he was about to be removed from the board.

The hardened detective who hurried to Woonsocket, R. I., to arrest Dieters and bring him back to face possible charges of conspiracy or extortion here, finished the day by assuring Dieters he was not under arrest, and muttering a promise about "getting the bunch together to help out with the rent."

Perhaps the greatest surprise of the day was Dieters' picturization of E. F. Jeffe, of whom Dieters stood in quaking terror, even in a Rhode Island cell, as a swashbuling gunloter and the "Blue-eyed Baby Boy" to a Philadelphia matron.

STORY IS STRANGE.

Dieters' full story, is the tale of a child of fate, suddenly plucked out of his humdrum life of a telephone operator, milled around in a whirlpool of circumstances over which he had no control, and finally tossed aside, goaded to leave his home and family by an insane fear.

Mrs. Margaret White of Brooklyn, solicitous of the behavior of Attorney C. E. Buts who lives at the same address, was the cause of the cataclysm in Dieters' life. An unidentified Philadelphia woman and E. F. Jeffe, a member of the Crescent Athletic Club, where Dieters was employed, complete the central figures in the maelstrom into which the humble telephone operator was cast.

FEARFUL OF JEFFE

Detective James J. Powers of Brooklyn headquarters arrived at the Woonsocket police station. Three officers went down to the lockup to bring up Dieters, who, shaking in the palsy of great fear, confided to Powers faintly:

"I'll go back with you, all right, but for God's sake don't let Jeffe get me."

On the long ride back to Brooklyn to face the district-attorney, the police, his frantic wife and children and Jeffe, he explained his mysterious disappearance.

"One day several months ago, the bell-captain of the club, Ralph Hand, brought me the fragments of two letters which he had picked out of a waste basket where Mr. Jeffe had thrown them.

FORGOT THE LETTERS.

"I looked at them. In a large, round woman's handwriting, and under a Philadelphia date line, they said, 'My Blue-eyed Baby Boy,' and 'My Cute Little Blue-eyed Baby.' I only read the first paragraphs of each. There wasn't much in them—just something about 'Mr. J. was down here a few days' and some other stuff like that.

"Hand asked me if I wanted them. I said, 'No, I mind my own business. I've a wife and kids, and I don't want to lose my job. You better tear them up.'

"So he said he would. Whether he did or not, I don't know, but I forgot about them.

CALLED BY MRS. WHITE.

"When just a little more than a week ago, Mrs. Wh ite called up the club. I had never heard of her. She asked a question regarding membership limitations of the club.

"A week ago Saturday Mrs. White called again, and asked me if Mr. Buts had gone out with Mr. Jeffe I said they had. She then discussed Mr. Jeffe, declaring that he was taking Mr. Buts from his home.

"The next day, she 'phoned again and I told her Mr. Buts and Mr. Jeffe had gone out together. She asked if they had telephoned Philadelphia. I said Mr. Buts had called a Philadelphia number and gave her the name of the woman he called.

TOLD MRS. JEFFE.

"Mrs. Jeffe sent a maid for me a little later the same day. She asked me if what Mrs. White had told her about Mr. Jeffe and the woman in Philadelphia was true. I said that she had 'phoned.

"She asked me if her husband got letters there from Philadelphia. She was crying, and I told her about blue-eyed baby boy letters.

"She said she was going to leave her husband and asked me if I would help her. I said I didn't want to lose my job because of my family, but I told her I would always tell the truth.

SHOWED DISTANCE CALLS.

"Mrs. White drove up in her car that evening and asked me if I would show her my records of long distance calls. I felt sorry for both of them, they told such sad stories so I went out to her car and showed her the calls to the Philadelphia woman.

"The next day Mr. Jeffe was going to different employes of the club trying to find out who had told his wife about phone calls and letters. On Wednesday he asked me about the calls. I told him that his wife and Mrs. White asked about them and that I had told them about them."

The Dieters Children

Then according to Dieters, began the hounding of Jeffe. He was visited at home by Jeffe and a man who Jeffe said was a postal inspector. Later Jeffe brought a detective to the house and they took Dieters to a police station where he was questioned for hours.

THREATENED BY JEFFE.

Coming down to last Saturday, Dieters said:

"Saturday afternoon Jeffe came to my house with a revolver and said if I didn't give him the letters by 6 o'clock that I knew what would happen. He told my wife that he could support her and my two children, but that he would hound me for the rest of his days. He told me to remember the Ward case.

"And then he said, if it's money you want, that woman in Philadelphia will give you plenty.

"I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to go to the club. I was afraid to go out. I was afraid to stay home for fear he would come back and kill me."

So, when it got dark, Dieters said, he took an old coat and hat to the Manhattan bridge, where he planted the coat, took a train for Hartford, Conn. Later he went to Encinitas, where he was taken into custody.

STILLMAN REVEALS WIFE'S ALLEGED 'CONFESSION' LETTER

"INDIAN BABY" IS REFERRED TO IN PRESUMED TEXT

appeal from the decision of Justice Morschauser.

The upState jurist had adjudged Stillman guilty of charges made by his wife, and dismissed the allegations Stillman brought against Mrs. Stillman.

The Morschauser decision, which upheld the finding of Referee Daniel J. Gleason, also declared that Baby Guy was the son of Stillman. Fred Beauvais, the Canadian, said to be of Indian blood, was named as corespondent by Stillman.

LETTERS GIVEN OUT

Several other letters written by Mrs. Stillman to her husband and her daughter Anne, which have appeared before in the volumes of evidence introduced by Stillman, were also contained in the appeal made by Stillman to the Brooklyn higher court, as reasons why the judgment of Justice Morschauser should be set aside.

One of these letters was a communication signed by "The Hen." It was addressed to Stillman and his daughter Anne, and was written from Buffalo, April 26, 1918, two days before the "confession" letter was sent from the same place.

In the letter she told that "J. S." (probably referring to Mr. Stillman's father) had "broke her down," and continuing said "and then in the end he took you from me." She blamed "J. S." for all their troubles.

Mrs. A. S. Guan and Stillman

Following is the text of the alleged "confession" letter, in which both spelling and punctuations follow the original:

"Hotel Iroquois, Monday 4:30 P. M. Buffalo, N. Y.

"Dear Jimmie — You have had such a bad time in your life, have stood things so like a gentleman that I hate to hurt you. First you and I are the same in our make-ups. Dr. Russell says to me—'you don't stand fretting well. You are like a high mettled horse. You could endure till you dropped — carry double weight.' That's it.

"There are some things that break us and they don't break you. Now the good news.

MUST GO ALONE

"It does not matter what life did to us or whether you were to me just what I hoped you would be or that you could make me fit in. I loved you. Not what you did or didn't made much difference except in the pain of beautiful days lost. Of things I saw that yes, could not see with your very dear blind eyes —but I loved you.

"Perhaps I would have been a lot happier if I hadn't and had worked you and J. S. and gotten all I could but I wanted you to see what you missed, and in a way I was unfair to you for you had all you could carry, and after a long time I saw that and let you go to what you could best get out of life to offset the J. S. burden—and I saw that I must go alone as best I could and give and make the children what I thought they should be—a bit here, a bit there, to make real men and women—but lack of money, petty cares, the little discomforts wore me thinner year by year, not outside but inside—beat down my courage and took hope away from me; but always I dreamed not for myself but about the great problems of life, and I saw many things, the why of lots of happiness, and wherever I was I tried to comfort and cheer the broken and disheartened because I knew pain so well.

WHAT LIFE IS

"I tried to tell them that the world is what you make it, and I believed in that dream that good is stronger than any evil. And then I woke to see that it was a dream and what life is, and I grew up.

"Perhaps I am unjust to say that J. S. broke me. I would like to be just to everyone. It could not make me happy to save myself, to put the blame on anyone, but perhaps you will not think that I am dishonest when I remember that Peterson and Doc have told me—that life is cause and effect. So we will end it that way I loved you.

"J. S. did not want you to marry you I would. I thought I was strong enough for him to see the hogeny and beauty of my hopes and dreams for you and the children and they are proof that I am right; look at them—but I was never right to him. And that breaks people like me bit by bit—and then he took you away from me.

THE LOSING FIGHT

"He overtaxed you and we began that losing fight of spending more than you have. You had to offset worry by some pleasure, and as we were mixed up with the worry it had to come else when I understand that, but what broke me more for it made the dream very dim until you became almost unreal, too, so nothing that came and went, always pots and kind.

"I am not smashed, but if you loved all your family and were going to have an Indian baby that you tried not to hate; that there was not a spot for you with honor or peace; that you were ill and tired; that a dear little man with whiskers tells you that the world is a good place and that hard blind people are to be pitied for they know nothing of what they miss.

"Sit in your big house and eat, you and Anne. Did you not say not to bother about the dishes people. These things will always be. You can't help them. No, you are wrong. Love protects by understanding the needs of those about us—that's all.

"I have tried to understand even the servants and forgive if the right spirit was there. I won't write you of what the cold and Canada were to me. Fred meant to be kind but he had won me and I was his and no one else wanted me and he is much Indian.

"No captive was won by fight, long ago, but did feel the whip upon white ears. He begged me to marry him, but you see I love you and I wanted to get away. I wanted peace and rest, and when I told him I was sick he was worried and now he is heartbroken.

HORRIBLE NIGHTMARE

"You see it is all a horrible nightmare; a thousand things come and go in my head and the hideous part is I feel and felt and fate drove me on here and there. Dr. Russell says it is the hand of God. He tells me—and I am not willing that my life be ruined if others can find the light through my pain—he seems to think that life is beginning, but he is still in the beautiful dream that I had. He is so good, he is just sorry for all the hard, lost, stupid people.

Fred Beauvais

Allie Stillman

"He tells me they are to be pitied, and I tell him they have everything—honor, comfort, good food, good homes, respect. He tells me he is an outcast—has been—but he is happy. I will get over it. I am an outcast, but it hurts.

"I know it is the end that counts, but the journey, what a journey.

"But you even get misty to the children, and that hurts me, and now we end it. Last winter the cold, the utter loneliness, the despair I felt—yes, I am dying bit by bit, day by day. Do you remember, the day before I left, you said you had been very comfortable in your room at Number 9—and I thought, yes, you were comfortable. I didn't tell you last winter what I suffered. I was too proud. I didn't care for you to come out and read your papers. I didn't want you to see me suffer. I was too proud to speak but I broke, just the same, in.

COLD AND LONELY

"I was so cold, so lonely, and that broke him; he was honorable, but I broke him and all his dreams, and that is so cruel that when you break all those that love you tumble with it.

"Dr. Russell is broken. He loves me, and he knew Fred to be honest. I have been through a lot more than I think some could stand, for I have learned all the terrible things, looked into them.

"Dr. Russell tells me—the dear doctor tells me so many good things, but I am raw. He tells me how—God works, all His wonderful ways, and He is making me suffer because I am strong. But you see that I have hurt so many I could hardly look at you and Anne; it hurts me so, and all the family with their nice little narrow lives, and always I wanted to save you all pain, but there is no way out.

ONE TERRIBLE MAN

"I went to one terrible man, not to save myself, please believe me—what have I left in the world? Do you think all the money you have could mend the hurts and all the watermelon dresses cover my bleeding heart—but to save you pain—but I couldn't. I looked at him and thought no; an Indian baby was honorable, but not have a man like that touch me, when I told Dr. R. he said 'My God, I have you here alive.'

"Then I thought I would go back to Canada, take Arthur and Fred and an old Indian woman and get lost, but what matters, I can't save anyone not even myself.

"Lots of love. Just remember that—don't be hard on anyone. Lots of people will want to do you, but out of them all may be some whom you can help—some poor devil. Please remember—don't be hard on all the others. You have so much, you and Anne. Don't get hard and forget the others who haven't your luck."

ANNE'S PHYSICIAN

The Doctor Russell Mrs. Stillman mentioned in the letters is Dr. E. L. Russell, of No. 303 Elmwood avenue, Buffalo, to whom Mrs. Stillman had gone for treatment for her nerves. Dr. Russell at hearings held in this city in connection with the charges and counter charges brought by the Stillmans against each other created a sensation by revealing conversations he alleged that he had with Mrs. Stillman while she was under his care.

Here is a copy of a telegram that was also filed with the notice of appeal to the Brooklyn court:

"D. E. L. Russell, No. 303 Elmwood avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Will be in Buffalo 22nd. Please engage single and double rooms with baths connecting at Iroquois. Please reserve time for treatment. Best regards to all the family.

"A. U. STILLMAN."

That telegram was dated November 19, 1917, just eleven months before the "confession" letter was alleged to have been written.

The following letter, in which Mrs. Stillman signed herself as "The Hen," and addressed to her husband and her daughter Anne, was also filed. It was sent from Buffalo, April 26, 1918, two days before the "confession" letter.

In it, she likens her life to that of Parsifal, and relates her dreams of what life should be, and her horrible awakening, and finding herself in the wilds of Canada.

The letter follows:

Dear Family:

The weather to-day was wonderful and I am the only discord in the Spring—Poor old Whiskers is just about crazy. He is so worried about me. And I just don't believe anything of anybody except my dear family. I don't know what my plans are.

I wish I had Dr. Lyle or Dr. Russell go somewhere with me and make believe in living. The only

How your appetite clamors for that salty, tangy flavor

WHEN your appetite asks for green olives, it asks in no uncertain terms.

You get hungry for them, then hungrier. The thought of the salty, tangy flavor just rouses your desire.

You want some. You buy a bottle. Then you bite into one—so firm, plump and meaty. That's just an invitation to eat another, and another. They're great!

They're good for you—for the whole family, children included. Green olives are plumb full of calories—1400 to the pound; more than fricasseed chicken or white bread.

There are novel ways to serve green olives for every social occasion. At dinners and parties. At luncheons and teas.

BAD BREATH
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, cleansing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

STILLMAN FILES "CONFESSION" OF HIS WIFE

way seems to smash anyone and hurt anyone so long as you get what you want. Somehow I can't believe that dear father, I know you do, that the world is a bad place and "sauve qui peut" and let the rest go hang. Perhaps I shall recover, I doubt it. Today I take a trip through the country, it's very green and hopeful—I look at myself and find I am not a bad looking woman and yet I have a terrible down on everyone—I feel that nothing can come out right because everything is so wrong with the world and with me.

SAYS SHE IS RIGHT

Whenever I talk to Dr. Russen I begins to look shattered. He says I am right; yet I am wrong, because I fight conditions—you can't—the world licks you. I have tried the child life. It is splendid, but very terrible at times on a woman. If you can't stand it, Mother Nature comes to the rescue and heals you in time by her rough methods.

I can't say that I like it, but I may be driven to it if it kills or cures. Then, the woods people don't stand for tears. You have got to laugh it, or they won't stand by you.

Fred's been very hard on me at times. He won't stand tears. Yes, I hate to have to go North. I used to feel that I would die there. Yet it brings out the fight in one—I felt last year when I came out of the wilds with my fifty-pound sack as if the world were mine. I felt so proud of being just myself. I felt there was not a river I could not cross or a mountain I could not climb—want to go sit in the sunshine with or becoming hat and well-cared-for hands and listen to the birds and dream, and have everyone tell me what a dear I am—and look forward to seeing my best beau with his best smile.

I don't want to hear the truth about myself and sweat over passages. I don't want Fred to ask me why I think I am better than anyone else, and he told the truth that I am hard to get on with sometimes. As you know, I have always been stuck up—the way I fix things I pretend I am not, but am. I always feel how nice it is for you all. You see, I left my taste was best. I now think that was a small point of view. In Canada I can't have anything my own way, because when I have, I have made bad mistakes.

LIKE PARSIFAL

If I had followed Fred's advice I wouldn't be sick now, but I wouldn't. It makes me furious, I rush about and make no end of trouble for everybody. I know too much and probably too little, probably too little. Do you know Parsifal—the story of a fool? Dear family, go together some time and see it and think of me—he wanders about here and there in life, in and out of danger—then the end. It's that that I dream of, the end worthy of the beginning—Parsifal takes the golden cup of life high above the head of God, and you see within the cup the wine of life turn blood red, and in the rush of the most divine music a white dove comes down and hovers about the cup. Well, family, the curtain must now, you appear to see—be it life, and something better, perhaps—dear family, you have all of you everything the world can give you now and always—a place in the sun, yet everything worries me.

I feel that no one can take good care of you but me—you can't get good toast or hot coffee even if you have a chef. Only love is the perfect servant. I think I have a bad effect on people, I make them want to weep, and yet I talk of many things. There is a most lovely sunset. The good God is trying to do something with me, and I can't make out what. You, dear Anne, said I was a bad sign my reading the Bible. It wasn't, because I know all is right at the ending, now I am sure of that, quite—good-by, dears, for the day.

ADORES FAMILY

"I have seen such lovely dresses, one a ravishing watermelon, with a black lace hat and black slippers, and my interesting face (you admit that, won't you?) will be a picture, and add a darling devoted husband and a perfectly heavenly daughter and a dear little boy who would rumple the pink watermelon dress. Instead I see myself in Alaska or Labrador, with a frying pan, fighting with Fred until I am cured, then he will be a lamb. When I am well he is always nice, dear family. Dear family I adore you all.

"Good night and much love,

"THE HEN.

"P. S.—You know what a fuss the Hen is. I am that."

HURLEY QUIT SCHOOL BOARD CAMPAIGN

Daniel J. Hurley, mentioned recently as a candidate for the School Committee, has issued a statement regretting that, due to professional duties, he cannot become a candidate.

David R. Scannell

Dr. David D. Scannell and Attorney George H. McDermott were nominated for the School Committee by the executive committee of the Public School Association. Dr. Walter G. McCauley also became a candidate when he took out nomination papers. Dr. Scannell is at present a member of the School Committee. His third term on the committee expires in February. He served as lieutenant-colonel in the army during the war.

PLOTTERS WORK AS TAILOR PRAISES FIT

"That's a nice fit," said the tailor. "What a nice fit that is."

Dr. Anthony Corogane of No. 70 Hawthorne street, Chelsea, surveyed the "wertex" before a mirror.

Means: Massachusetts avenue tailor shop.

The Doc's other coat and vest lay on a chair.

Enter Dorothy Morgan, alias Drake, her hubby, Tom, and one Alfred Johnson.

"Oh, what a nice fit that is, Doctor. The tailor rubbed his hands briskly.

"Oh, what a nice watch that is," said one of the visiting trio.

They took the air; so did the watch.

AMERICAN COUPLE SUICIDES IN CHINA

Shanghai, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.).—A domestic difference ended in double suicide here today. The couple were prominent members of the foreign colony. Harry Amberg, Eastern representative of the Universal Picture Corporation, and his wife, residing at the Hong Kong Hotel, became engaged in a quarrel. Mrs. Amberg, in the excitement, swallowed poison. Amberg, learning that there was no hope for the recovery of his wife, jumped thirty feet into the courtyard of the hotel. Both died within a short time.

"DINGER" DOANE IS DIVORCED BY WIFE

Nine years ago, Erling E. "Dinger" Doane of Somerville won the heart of a pretty girl by a brilliant run for a touchdown that won a football game for Colgate College. He was married to the girl on August 5, 1916, while Doane was still a student at college. Today they are divorced.

"Dinger" Doane.

The bitter sequel to the gridiron romance was enacted in the East Cambridge Probate Court before Judge John C. Leggat, when Mrs. Doane was granted the divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. Doane did not contest the suit.

GARFIELD LEADS FIGHT TO GUARD FARM RIGHTS

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, Nov. 8 (C N S).—James R. Garfield of Ohio, Secretary of the Interior in the Cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt, was today preparing to appeal to the people of the country to defeat the plan already to be in progress here to dispossess the bankrupt farmers, abandon the nation's reclamation project and deliver the great irrigation dams to private water power corporations and real estate speculators.

Mr. Garfield came to Washington to serve as a member of Secretary Work's fact-finding commission, which has held all its hearings behind closed doors. The ostensible purpose of the secret probe is to ascertain whether the reclamation project has been successful.

COST $181,000,000.

In twenty years the government has spent about $181,000,000 on the project. Millions of acres have been irrigated. Two blades of grass are growing where only one blade grew before. Once arid wastes in Montana, Colorado, Nevada, Arizona, California, Idaho, Utah and elsewhere are now producing food for man and beast.

Among the great developments of the project are the Roosevelt Dam in Arizona and the Elephant Butte dam in Montana. The Roosevelt is the second largest in the world, surpassed only by the Assouan in the Nile. The largest ram in the world is to be built at Boulder Canyon, Colo., and another enormous dam at Priest River, Washington. Scores of smaller dams are completed. The dams hold back millions of gallons of water which is let out gradually to slake the soil through the long periods of drought.

FARMERS PAY $34,000,000

The farmers rent the water from the Government. They have paid the Government back $34,000,000. Hard times have now impoverished them. They want extension of credit.

Garfield suspected that beneath the fact-finding commission is an underlying effort to abandon all the great reclamation work and to let it all out to private managers. Powerful water power interests are believed to be searching out a method to get the great dams from the Government and use them for their own private enterprises.

Garfield was said to be preparing to combat such attempts. If necessary he will appeal to Congress directly and will be supported by an aggressive group of liberals, including the old Roosevelt Republicans and Gifford Pinchot's followers. Senator La Follette is expected to lead the fight in the Senate.

Wilson Ignorant of Americans, Says Birkenhead

London, Nov. 8 (Universal Cable)—Lord Birkenhead, in his first public appearance since his return from the United States, expressed approval of America's refusal to support the extravagant claims advanced in behalf of the League of Nations.

He said, referring to former President Wilson:—

"He among all the statesmen who made the League of Nations, who should have most completely understood the American people, demonstrated that he understood them least of all.

"That people is the most generous people in the world. But they rightly draw a sharp, logical distinction between idealism in their capacity as private citizens or private charity, and idealism in their corporate or national character."

ELOPING GIRL OF 14 IS CAUGHT AT NASHUA

Marlboro, Nov. 8.—Lil' Dan Cupid has received another wallop.

Parents got under the wire ahead of the preacher, and neither fourteen-year-old Dorothy Daniels nor her eighteen-year-old sweetheart will hear wedding bells ring, unless for someone else, until they get older, at least.

Dorothy Daniels

When a postcard reached Dorothy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Daniels of No. 60 Broad street, telling them she eloped with Arthur J. Ballard, son of Mrs. Rose Ballard, No. 2, Madden court, they got busy.

The card was signed by Dorothy, and said they had paused in Nashua, N. H., on their way to Maine to get married. Father and mother hurried to Nashua, went into a restaurant to get breakfast, and saw Dorothy and Arthur pass on the street. The trip home was the next event.

Mrs. Daniels stated to the Boston American that the elopers had occupied separate apartments while away and that no charge will be pressed against young Ballard. Mrs. Daniels also stated there were no objections to the marriage except that Dorothy is too young. Both elopers accompanied the girl's parents home.

APP INDICTED FOR ATTACK ON GIRL OF 9

Confined in East Cambridge jail in default of $15,000 bail for an alleged attack on Grace Drew, seven-year-old Melrose girl, William F. App 28, of Medford, was indicted by the Middlesex County Grand Jury for an alleged assault on Phoebe C. Dotten of Winchester.

Grace Drew

The Dotten girl is nine years old and the indictment charges the attack took place October 9. App maintains little hope of securing bail in either case.

FIGHTING FIRES WITHOUT WATER IN WELLESLEY

Property owners in Wellesley Hills are alarmed over a fire menace which, they declare, exists in that suburb. Early today the district in the vicinity of the Academy of the Assumption on Oakland street was threatened with destruction owing to an insufficient supply of water to fight a fire which destroyed a small frame dwelling attached to the Academy.

Householders climbed to the roofs of their houses and fought firebrands from the burning building with wet blankets and brooms to prevent a conflagration. During the fire citizens telephoned to the Water Commissioners and Selectmen, asking them to come and view the situation. Only the chairman of the Selectmen responded.

The burned dwelling was ordinarily occupied by the engineer employed at the Academy, but has been vacant for a week. It is claimed the firemen arrived in time to have stopped the fire if there had been sufficient water pressure in the street mains, but were forced to stand helpless while the building burned.

A previous fire in the district resulted in the same way and the people have been agitating for larger street mains ever since, but without results.

5 STOCK SALESMEN LOSE STATE LICENSE

The licenses of five stock salesmen were revoked today by the Public Utilities Commission for failure to inform the commission by whom they are employed. The men are Harris B. Watchel, Harry C. Anderson, William Brown, Moe Smith and William G. Rogers.

DEFRAUDED OF $1,800 BY GIRL SHE HELPED

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Mrs. Anna Weir Randall told police that someone had charged $1,500 worth of goods to her accounts in State street and forged her name on checks for $300. Mrs. Randall was greatly surprised when Sergeant John Catan of the detective bureau called at her home and arrested her guest, Miss Mary Ellsworth, who wept and admitted the offenses.

SEEK FAKE DOCTOR 'MILL' IN CAMBRIDGE

Mayor Helps Young Monk Pay Off Debt

ON TRAIL OF FAKE DOCTORS

Connecticut Exposes Leads to East Cambridge and Missouri

Discovery of 200 fake doctors in Connecticut led today to an expose of a "diploma mill" involving Massachusetts and Missouri.

Question is where is the "mill"? Is it in East Cambridge or St. Louis?

The Middlesex College of Physicians and Surgeons at East Cambridge is involved in what may become a nation-wide scandal.

Also the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons.

In Connecticut death stalked in the wake of bogus doctors practicing on unsuspecting patients. One doctor attempting to amputate the crushed finger of a workman in his office, where hung a forged certificate giving him a degree in medicine, caused the workingman's death.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY.

Today Governor Charles A. Templeton ordered the head of the Connecticut state health department to proceed immediately to East Cambridge and investigate the suspected "medical diploma mill."

State's attorney is about to order the convening of an extraordinary Grand Jury, an unprecedented action in the Nutmeg State, that procedure being carried out only in capital murder cases.

John Hall Smith, dean of the Middlesex College of Physicians and Surgeons at East Cambridge, today admitted there had been a diploma lead at the college back in 1920. But only three diplomas disappeared, he said. They vanished in th's wise:

Twelve diplomas were given to a student, an engraver, to engrave on them the names of graduates. Only nine were returned

WENT TO ST. LOUIS.

The engraver declared he had received only nine, but the clerk held to the statement that she had given him a dozen. The argument waxed so hot that the suspected student left the college and went to the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, which was exposed by the investigation of the St. Louis Star. He later returned to Boston and applied to the State Medical Board for registration. He failed at the examination and has not applied for another chance.

"Dr." George E Sutcliffe, St Louis photographer, who hoisted his "physician and surgeon" shingle in Unionsville, Ct., after he says he got a Connecticut license by paying one of the examiners $500, brought about the "diploma" expose. He lost five of his first six patients in Unionville and also the man whose finger was amputated.

The State Board of Registration in Medicine, according to Dr. Charles E. Prior, is attempting to ascertain if the medical profession of this State is pure. If frauds are existing, the board wants to know it and an investigation now being made will disclose the frauds.

JILTED SUITOR CARVES NAME ON GIRL'S BODY

Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—How she was taken from an auto into a factory, had her clothes stripped from her and then was forced to stand while her jilted suitor slashed his name across her body with a knife was told by Miss Marie Sanke, nineteen, to Miss Antoinette Calachan, chief woman probation officer.

James C. Wild, twenty-three, held for the offense, was bound over to the Grand Jury on $2,000 bail.

The girl testified she met Wild about six months ago and that she became too ardent and was jealous. She told him all was off between them, but he pleaded for one last auto ride. It was on this ride, she says, that he slashed and tattooed his name on her body.

"If I can't have you, I'll fix you so no one else can," she says he said. "I'll put my brand on you—and you'll carry it to your grave."

A single teaspoonful of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Will restore good humor

Mothers!! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. Ida Williamson of 1637 Pine St., Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Lou Brawley of Self, Ark., never have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels

Send if You Want to Try It Free Before Buying—"Syrup Pepsin," 517 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

I need a good laxative and would like to prove what you say about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by actual test. Send me a free trial bottle. Address to

100,000 TO JOIN KLAN 'VICTORY CELEBRATION'

Youngstown, O., Nov. 8.—Klansmen numbering "more than 100,000," from Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, will gather here Saturday to celebrate "the biggest victory won by the Klan, north of the Mason and Dixon Line," E. A. Watkins, Spokesman of the Klan, announced today.

Colonel Watkins denied reports that a delegation from Atlanta, Headquarters of the Klan will be present. The victory is the election of Charles Schebler, Klan candidate for mayor.

Both sides in the controversy over the proposed Klan parade were standing pat, today, Mayor W. G. Reese refusing to issue a permit and Klan officials announcing that the parade will be held.

Observers scanning the figures from Tuesday's election, pointed out that Municipal Judge Joseph Heffernan, who is not eligible to membership in the Klan, and whose opponent had been endorsed publicly by the Klan, polled 32,000 votes, as against Schebler's 20,444 votes in the Mayoralty race.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 8.—Memphis voters went to the polls today to elect city officials for a term of four years after a spirited campaign in which the Ku Klux Klan was the big issue. Three Mayoralty candidates are in the field, Rowlett Paine, candidate for re-election; Judge Lewis T. Fitzhugh of the Municipal Court, both anti-Klan men, and W. Joe Wood, who is backed by the Klan.

HAROLD LLOYD

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 8.—Harold Lloyd, motion picture comedian, suffered injuries here, which his physicians said would keep him away from the camera for two weeks, when a fire hose nozzle he was using in the filming of a comic "thriller" swung around and hit him in the face, cutting his forehead and knocking him off a rapidly moving truck.

LLOYD GEORGE TO LEAD FREE TRADE FIGHT

London, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.)—Former Premier David Lloyd George is due in London tomorrow from his triumphal American trip.

He has become somewhat of a "man of mystery," owing to his failure to reveal his plans.

It has long been believed, however, that an issue was all Lloyd George needed to achieve his return to Downing Street.

Premier Baldwin's new "protection policy" probably has furnished that issue.

It is generally believed Lloyd George will immediately plunge into the fray, taking up the cudgels in favor of free trade. In such event he will become leader of the political group opposing Premier Baldwin and his policy. There is a possibility that the protection fight may unite the Liberal party, which has been split into two factions for five years, Lloyd George leading one wing and former Premier H. H. Asquith, the other. A strong Liberal fight is certain to attract many Conservatives (Tories) who are only lukewarm towards protection.

Lloyd George is scheduled to make a speech immediately after his arrival tomorrow and it is likely he will then indicate his personal policy. His associates are planning to meet him at Southampton and hold an important political conference.

Laughter Improves American Child, Says Educator

New York, Nov. 8.—Laughter is beneficial, and American children are better at it than English youngsters, Dr. C. W. Kimmins, Gilchrist lecturer at the University of London, said at a luncheon of the Federation for Child Study at the Hotel McAlpin.

Dr. Kimmins said children in this country have the advantage of the Mark Twain and Bret Harte traditions, and are more faithful readers of Dickens than English children.

He said his studies of London children show they begin to laugh at the age of seven, and improve until eleven, but that from eleven to thirteen there is no development of the sense of humor.

Amusements

GEORGE WASHINGTON invaded Boston in 1776 and he made a whale of a job of it.

His success came of American courage and provided an example for every American to imitate.

I've invaded this good old town many a time and believe I've a fair idea how George Washington felt when he marched down to dear old Boston Common.

But here goes for my biggest invasion, with my courage strong, and with a small army of players in three comedy divisions presenting arms in different laughter brigades.

One of these will appear in Vincent Lawrence's American sweetheart comedy, "TWO FELLOWS AND A GIRL," a play you'll fall in love with if you've ever fallen in love.

Another is "SO THIS IS LONDON!" That's an American laugh hit that spread across the ocean.

And the other is "LITTLE NELLIE KELLY," who was born here and for whom I don't have to doubt your regard.

So let's all whistle Yankee Doodle and have a real good American comical time.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

A Delightful Romance with an Unusual Heroine

This Story Will Be Shown Soon in Motion Pictures Starring Marion Davies at One of Your Favorite Theatres in Boston

THE STORY SO FAR

Larry Delavan, a fashionable young man in the days when Fulton was perfecting his steamboat in New York, expects that his stepfather will leave him his large fortune. When John Jacob Astor reads the will he discovers that all the property goes to a nephew, Patrick O'Day, in Ireland. Astor is made trustee and Larry guardian of the heir. Delavan is terribly disappointed. The O'Day family is about to be evicted from their poor home in Ireland, when a strange solicitor appears and informs them of their good fortune. Patricia, disguised as her brother, who dies on the trip, and her father, arrive in New York. Delavan becomes interested in Robert Fulton's steamboat and promises $10,000 of the expenses. It has a successful trial trip and Pat saves it from falling into Schuyler's hands by a bluff. Larry backs Bully Boy Brewster in a prize fight.

Larry and his friends start for the fight, leaving Pat (Marion Davies) behind

"But even if I were to get you in would you be able to pass—"

"Leave it to me!" If I'm once in I'll find a way to stay, never fear."

"Well and Reilley. "I'll be doin' to do what I can, then."

Back and fallen, but the two light gave way only to the even brighter light of a moon that was nearly full. Pat, clinging to Riley's hand, looked about her with eager interest, as they made their way toward the firehouse.

The news of the fight had come as a fitting climax to the great day. Already a great crowd surged about the locked doors of the fire house. Some gentlemen, early arrivals, were there, but the bulk of the crowd was made up of the rougher element. Many of these had come from the neighborhood, but even more had crossed the river from New Jersey in the wake of the formidable Hobo ken Terror.

Riley shook his head.

"It's a rough crowd," he said. "There'll be more heads broken in that than those of the two men in the ring. Please God it'll not come to a riot"

"Why should it be?" asked Pat.

"Well, look you Pat, said Reilley. "Here's the two fighters and their friends. They'll fight—and their friends must bet upon them. They'll be to show their friendship, d'ye see you? And one man must lose—and so must his friends. And when men of this sort lose their money they turn ugly, look you, and seek to get its worth somewhere other way. And so they fight, in the hope that that will serve their turn somehow"

"Then they are stupid people" said Pat.

"Maybe—maybe," said Reilley, with a sigh. "But I mind me when I was your age I wasn't thinkin' so! Then a fight was a fight, and who so blithe as Rob Ivy to be in the thick and midst of it!"

"It's no patience with such dolines," said Pat crossly. "I fight as readily an any one when there is need, but not when there is none."

"Ah, well," said Reilly, "times change and boys change with them! 'Twas not so in my day—that's all I know. Whist—careful, now—we're near the door I know of, in the back. Let me go first soft like, and be sure that Mr Larry's not here yet"

"Where would he be if he is not here?"

"Why, with his fighter, sure, givin' him his instructions, and seein' to it that he's fit and ready to do battle"

"Does Bully Boy Brewster need Larry's instructions"

"Hov, do you know nothin' that boys know? Sure, 'tis the seconds whose stands behind the fighters—prime them for the ring—advise them! What would ignorant gossoons like this Brewster know of how to stand up and conduct themselves did no one tell them how"

Already there was a sullen, sinister note in the deep voice of the gathering crowd. Sentiment had not yet risen to a great pitch, but the more solid citizens of old New York were beginning to doubt the advisability of permitting fights like this within the corporate limits. Astor, for one, was dead against them.

"Let them go out into the country, up Greenwich way, or the sea, if they must fight!" he said. "There there is room, when they rot later. How they keep sober citizens, who'd be getting a night's sleep to refresh them for the next day's work, awake, they destroy property, and do all manner of mischief"

Pat trembled gently as she waited to one while Reilly slipped in through back door known only to a few. She was afraid of this crowd; afraid of the tremendous forces it represented as a whole; but she was never afraid of individuals. And sometimes, as she listened to her companions, it grew to seem, not that it was difficult, if not impossible of attainment.

This many headed beast of a crowd that she had heard so much pointed to pressed it was waiting hungrily. It would not be baited. It would like one who bottle whoever stood in that way.

"Psst! Pat! Quick now—and still—"

Reilley's voice checked her meditations. Swiftly she obeyed her. Well found herself a moment inside the fire house. She looked about her at once, with the awful interest she always took in any thing new.

She had another view now of the wide doors on the opposite side, against which she had seen the crowd surging and beating in its effort to get inside. In the centre of the great room was the ring, a platform raised about six feet from the floor, with ropes strung all about it and steps leading up to it.

At one end of the room she saw a man and while it the begin ner of a circular staircase

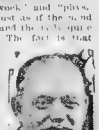
SECRETS OF HEALTH

WHEN YOU BECOME MUSCLE WEARY

By Chas. A. L. Reed M. D

(Former President of the American Medical Association.)



WE often hear about "mental overwork" and "physical overwork" just as if the words were describing two entirely different things. The fact is that body and mind are the same unit that together ever exercised to the absolute excession of the other.

It is equally true however that the brain, which is more directly the organ of the mind than are the other organs of the body, must be subjected to more work and even stress at times than are the other parts of the body.

Such work is called "brain work" and the worker is called a "brain worker."

But it is equally true that the muscles rather than the brain may be and often are especially exercised to even stressed, in doing particular work.

Such work is called "physical work" or "muscle work" and the worker is called a "muscle worker" or a "laborer."

But muscle work and consequently muscle weariness may result from other forms of exercise than that of labor or toil for a wage.

All the physical sports, such as golf or tennis or baseball or cricket involve muscular exercise and may be carried to the point of muscle weariness when they cease to be sport but become mere labor.

The monotony of muscular exercise with relative absence of emotional or intellectual stimulus tends to arrest of intellectual growth, a fact which shows that physical exercise, to be of all-around value, must be associated with pleasure, which is the difference between labor and sport.

This is the scientific basis for the demand, for science demands it more leisure for the so-called "workingman," who by such leisure becomes more of a "thinking man" and therefore a more efficient "workingman."

Muscle weariness demands rest and food for its cure.

Workmen in the street or elsewhere who, after eating their midday luncheon, stretch out some place and take complete rest by taking the complete relaxation of a nap will do more work during the afternoon than will the same workmen on days when they do not take a nap.

WHAT THE STARS SAY

UNLUCKY DAY FOR SPECULATION.

ACCORDING to this day's lunar aspects, there may be considerable annoyance and perplexity in both business and domestic affairs. The inauspicious planetary ruling may be directed through channels of irritability and stubbornness, which may precipitate quarrels and litigation. Be cool and self contained, protect the money and avoid speculation in order that the benefic influences may be permitted to operate through lunary transit.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

IT IS what you haven't in common to build on, not what you are after feeling for each other that worries her. But for myself, I'm thinking your love for Jim is big enough to see you through it.

"To see me through" I questioned.

For the first time since I've known him, Pat Dalton began to stammer and stumble about as if Larry weren't any words to say what he meant. Out of the jumbled meanings and havings I got this:

"There's no harm in Jim's taking up with a literary set I reckon so. 'Tis only too bad you're so wrapped up in business and in the search for Neal that you can't put yourself out to be with him more."

Put by the car out in a rush of speed as if to shut off conversation, and we drove along in silence for a long time. It was only as we were approaching the Dodge place that Pat spoke again.

"Jennie's your friend, Alvina. Never doubt that. But she's poor, too—and if there are sides to be taken, where would you be after expecting to find her? Where are you when it comes to standing by Neal against the world?"

"Thank you, Pat," I said quietly.

By this time we were driving up the path to the Hoadley place. When we arrived an amazing sight greeted me. Ralphie car was drawn up in front of the house, and he and Uncle Mix were just in the act of strapping my suitcase to it. Aunt May was standing on the steps with a chiffon automobile veil in her hands. There was a great air of bustle and preparation.

Ralph spoke to Pat. I thought, he said.

"Did you tell her?" and got a murmur about there being too much else to talk over, and no use worrying me before it was necessary.

Then Aunt May came briskly forward and put her arms about me.

"Anne," she said quietly. "Ralph is hurrying you right down town. He'll take care of you."

"What is it?" I gasped. "Neal

"No," answered Aunt May gently. "It's Jim. He has been hurt in swimming. It's probably nothing serious. But he wants you to come to him. "She laughed tenderly, with a crooning sound in her voice. "Men are such babies when they're ill."

"Ralph—explain this to me," I demanded as his car whirled me down the road away from Aunt May's home and the strange group she and I were Max and Pat Dalton made as they speeded us almost silent by on our way.

"I will," answered Ralph. "You're the last woman in the world I'd strip in cotton wool or deprive of a chance to use her own wits in any situation. Jim was off for the weekend with the MacAvoys and a party of friends. They were in swimming this afternoon and Jim did a bit of fancy diving—something went wrong and he got hurt. I'm sure it's not serious. It's when a man is in pain I suppose he naturally wants his wife with him."

"Why didn't Aunt May or Uncle Mix go to see him?" I questioned.

"What the message while you were at Dreamwold, and Aunt May went straight up to see Jack Your Jim. I telephoned Dreamwold and got Pat on the wire"—

"That's what delayed him so long," I murmured, remembering how Pat had flung red when he went in to get my cape before bringing me home.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Self reverence, self-knowledge, self control, these three lead life to sovereign power."

Tennyson, in his poem "Ae none" gives us the qualities which, in his opinion, make a man great.

"Truth forever on the scaffold; wrong forever on the throne."

Thus it seems to everyone when things are as dark and forbidding as when Lowell penned these words in "The Present Crisis."

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die."

This consoling thought is from "Hallowed Ground," by Thomas Campbell.

"Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

True nobility is of the heart and mind and not merely of birth, Tennyson writes in his poem, "Lady Clare Vere de Vere."

"In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of Love."

This oft repeated line is from Tennyson's "Locksley Hall."

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bethel, Wis.—My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to give up this work entirely and stay at home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as it should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the Vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it for a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 93 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. NATICK FANS WILL SUPPORT PAL REED

There won't be many people in Natick a week from tomorrow night when Pal Reed battles Johnny Wilson in a ten-round bout at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at the Boston Arena. Reed has been making his home in Natick and is as popular as Eddie Meehan, which is saying a great deal.

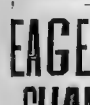
TARAMASCHI, NEW ITALIAN MAT STAR, IN BOUT TONIGHT

EAGER FOR CHANCE AT LEWIS

By JACK CONWAY

Angelo Taramaschi, whom this writer considers a better wrestler than either Renato Gardini or George Calza were at their best, will display his remarkable ability to Boston and New England fans when he clashes with John Rogalaska in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House tonight.

Taramaschi has come here from Los Angeles, where he was a sensation last season. He defeated his opponents in impressive style. Unlike Chris Taramaschi did not meet hand picked mat men. He took on the toughest stars available and won.



Angelo Taramaschi

This writer saw the new Italian star in a strenuous two hour workout the other day. We were anxious to get a line on the newcomer before we attempted to pick the winner of tonight's bout. We do not care to name the victor of a wrestling or boxing match without first having an opportunity to size up the contestants.

Taramaschi showed us more real wrestling than Gardini or Calza ever did. He is the only Italian wrestler whom we believe has a chance of winning the world's title from Strangler Lewis. This is due to the fact Taramaschi not only has wrestling class, but he is also blessed with great determination. A wrestler cannot hope to reach the top of his class unless he has that kind of courage which enables him to go in and conquer any kind of opposition

NEW ITALIAN STAR OPENS TO MEET ALL-COMERS.

Calza lacked this asset. This was very evident when, after signing to wrestle Stanley Sinsuk, he got a bad attack of cold feet and returned to Italy

Upon his arrival in Boston, Taramaschi informed Paul Bowser, matchmaker for the Old Howard management, that he wanted to tackle the headliners in the mat game. He didn't bar Sinsuk, Lewis, Pesek or any of the mat stars who are out front.

In agreeing to battle Rogalaski tonight, the Italian champion is proving his mettle. Rogalaski is one of the toughest of the trail horses. He has clashed with virtually all of the headliners in the mat game and will give Taramaschi a severe test tonight. If the Italian wins, he'll be in a position to go after bigger game.

Jack Albright, the man with a thousand holds, will oppose Charley Marshall, French light-heavyweight champion, while Vladas Zukauskas, Lithuanian heavyweight champion, will have Lawson Pinkham of Attleboro as an opponent.

Our selections are Taramaschi, Albright and Bleskas.

MICKEY WALKER TO WORK OUT WITH PAL REED.

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, will workout with Pal Reed, Natick middleweight, who clashes with Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, in the feature ten-round bout at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at the Boston Arena a week from tomorrow night. Mickey and Reed are in the same "stable." Walker, always a great fighter, has improved 100 per cent. since he won over Jack Britton, and should be able to give Reed many valuable tips as to how to battle Wilson. Walker, in the opinion of this writer, can defeat any man in the world weighing from 145 to 155 pounds.

The welterweight boss figures that Reed's terrific punching power will give him a chance of seeing with a knockout over Wilson. The latter, however, showed in his recent bout with George Robinson that he has the class to go out and swap blows with the best of them. There are many boxing experts who are of the opinion Wilson would be able to defeat Greb right now in a bout at 160 pounds.

* * *

Red Dougherty, manager of Bobby Barrett, has been connected with the boxing game long enough to know that speeches are unnecessary after a ring contest. When the referee's decision to Willie Gradwell, Dougherty appeared to think it was his duty to condemn everybody connected with the boxing game. Dougherty apparently believes in the system of where a boxer carries his own referee around the country. Red has served in this capacity for Dempsey. Naturally one with such a training dislikes to have his boxer battle before disinterested judges and a referee who gives a decision as he sees it.

FRED MOORE HAS BEATEN STAR BRITISHERS

There will be an international smack to the match which the Fanciul A. A will stage in Mechanics Build ing next Wednesday night. Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia fighter will battle with Ted Moore a British heavyweight, who recently arrived in New York and is now under the management of Tom O Rourke.

Tommy Loughran

Moore comes to this country with a record which places him as the top notch light heavyweight fighter in England. He has beaten Ted Kid Lewis, Rowland Todd and Johnny Basham.

Like the majority of the British boxers, Moore is a fast, clever boxer, but from across the water comes the story that he is a hard, fast fighter, willing to mix at all times. If he can beat Loughran he certainly will be in line for big matches in New York

It is quite a coincidence that Moore's first American fight will be staged in Boston, as it was here that Ted Kid Lewis won his first important fight when he beat Mike Glover.

They scored again in the second period, when Huberman blocked a kick.

Neville kicked all three goals.

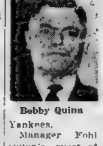
FOHL ASSERTS RED SOX HAVE GOOD PITCHERS

By NICK FLATLEY.

Lee Fohl, new Red Sox manager, is now doing his stuff in Boston and getting ready for a busy Spring and Summer, even though it is the middle of the football season



Bobby Quinn

Lee doesn't think he has a tail-end ball club at all. In fact, he doesn't think any club should be a tail ender.

"Make any team hustle and fight all the time," he says, "and it must win more games than it loses."

This would create a very difficult mathematical proposition if eight clubs in one league happened to prove it, but it's what Fohl thinks, anyhow. And he has demonstrated it with his own ball clubs.

He likes the pitching staff he has fallen heir to much better than one would expect, and really believes that the Red Sox have the best chucking material in the American League after you exclude the Manager Fohl was President Quinn's guest of honor at a fall baseball meeting, and the pair of them sprinkled around more optimism than does the dour old pastime in these parts has known for many a moon.

Lee Fohl

The Red Sox, according to the president, will spend just as much money as any club in the world to get real ball players

"Boston," explains President Robert, "has supported baseball in the past so well that any price could be paid for a player and be very profitable. The city is all ready to come back.

"I have plenty of money to spend. I want to make some, of course, but I'd rather just break even and finish well up in the race than clean up a bundle and be away down."

Them strange words in this neck of the universe, but when Quinn says a thing he means it.

RED SOX HAVE BOUGHT 19 PLAYERS

The Red Sox, as a matter of fact, have bought 19 players, mostly from Class A clubs, a larger number of prospective heroes than any team in either league has purchased. They haven't been the cheap brand, either

Quinn and Fohl have a lot of deals they would like to put through, but haven't been able to get any real action. Everybody is postponing business until the gathering of the clans at Chicago next month.

The natives don't expect to corral any big fish there, but are set to really do something in a bundling way.

IT LOOKS LIKE NEW ORLEANS FOR CAMP

Plans for the Spring trip are now being discussed, with New Orleans the scene thereof, if arrangements can be made in that village. Fohl likes Louisiana for climate and general conditions, so the team will probably go there.

The new director believes in long training trips, with not too much strenuous work per diem. His methods are radically different from those of most of the pilots; but he gets results.

He asserts that he has never had a pitcher with a sore arm on any ball team of his and if he can keep the Sox wings comfortable, he will win himself a flock of games.

Frozen soupers in our chilly Springs have been disastrous to many local outfits.

CROSS-COUNTRY RACE ON NEW YORK COURSE

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 7.—Dartmouth's cross country team will compete with Columbia, Penn and Cornell over the Van Cortlandt Park course Saturday.

Boalden Collins, Healy, Nazro, Osgood, Ryder, Udall and Winsor, Capt. Letteney, recovered from a leg injury, will be on hand to run against the other teams.

The Green squad will stay at the Hotel Pennsylvania and will walk over the course Friday afternoon. Coach Hillman, and Manager O. T. Jackson of Medford, will accompany the team.

Midgets Want Games

Summer St. A. C. Midgets would like games with any 90-100 pound team in Greater Boston. Would like to hear from the Hy-Ayres of Roxbury. Write Francis Huckins, No. 21 Brookings street, or call Mystic 3158-R for games.

CENTENARY HAS PRACTICE AT WIGWAM

Bo McMillan and his Centenary squad of twenty-seven players arrived at Back Bay this morning and went immediately to the Hotel Lenox. They will try out Braves Field this afternoon, and again tomorrow morning. In the afternoon they intend to take in some schoolboy game.

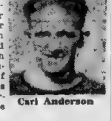
Roscoe Minton

Their meeting with Boston College at the Wigwam Saturday will be a spectacle of wide open football. Both teams have been polishing their overhead attack, while little is known of the Louisianans' end running ability.

In the seven games played so far, the "Gentlemen" have not been forced to show any of their reserve power. Every contest was won by the constant use of three of four line plays. The Eagle, therefore, will get the benefit of their savings account.

The Eagles intends to try open formations, end runs and forward passes rather than the conservative style of pounding the line. The B. C. coach will take no chances of breaking bones against a stone wall. Of course, if the Southerners' line proves weaker than accounts relate, then the play will be driven through it, with the usual power.

On the few occasions that McMillan's men did open up this fall, the forward passing system was superb. But there is a reason. Bo spent a month attending Knute Rockne's summer school for coaches at South Bend, Ind. and then went South to impart his increased store of knowledge to his team, the majority of whom are grass material.



Carl Anderson

With the Southern offence all theorized, McMillan obtained "Cow" Minton, former Valparaiso star, to coach the line. This has been the greatest worry of the old Centre hero, but in the games so far the forwards have done him, and themselves credit.

The "Louisiana Gentlemen" outweigh the Eagle forwards almost to a man, but the B. C. line has the experience. It is further strengthened by the return of McManus and Beaver for the first time in two weeks.

If the heavy rangy Southern line can hold the stabs of the Eagle backs, they will accomplish what all Shreveport hopes. If they fail, they will meet with such a reception of points as greeted Baylor for the past two years.

KENNETH McLEAN IS A STAR QUARTER

Of the quarterbacks playing scholastic football this year, Kenneth McLean of Jamaica Plain, stands out as the best in Boston.

Kenneth McLean

McLean has the snap and spirit that keeps the team playing heads up football from whistle to whistle.

He takes rare judgment in his plays and has proved himself a past master carrying the ball. He has one more term.

INDOOR CIRCUS WILL HELP SALEM STADIUM

For a long time Salem was without a stadium for High School sports. Through the financial assistance of Grayden Stetson and associates, money was found to build not only a stadium worthy of the city but to provide a coach.

The first public appeal for financial assistance will be made at the tremendum of a big indoor circus at the North street rink for one week. It will start November 19.

WORCESTER HOPES TO WIN FROM ANDOVER

Worcester, Nov. 8.—Coach Blasley gave his Worcester Academy soccer squad another hard day in preparation for the game with Andover at Gaskill Field Saturday.

The first team has shown a great improvement since the return of Captain Martins Fuente and Hardy.

Georgia Tech Plays

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8.—Georgia Tech's Yellowjackets will tackle Penn State Saturday in their final intersectional battle of the season. The Jackets plan to stop in Washington for a practice session before leaving for Philadelphia.

Worcester, Nov. 8.—Bill Clennon, Holy Cross star, was discharged from St. Vincent Hospital. He will probably go to the college infirmary to rest for a few days, then out for practice again, but will limit his activity to keeping up on signals and changes in plays.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—The Centenary College football team, led by Bo McMillan, formerly of Centre College, practiced in preparation for the Boston College game in Boston on Saturday.

TUFTS RULES A FAVORITE FOR SATURDAY

A white football was used by the Tufts' grid squad as it was dark before Coach Casey ended the workout. Every man who faced the Crimson was on hand and appeared in excellent shape for Bowdoin.

Hal Reed

The Tufts' mentor believes that the overhead game will win against the Maine team, and he had Steiman, regular quarterback, and young George Perry, first substitute, toss passes during the warm scrimmage session which featured the day's practice.

In a change in the lineup Joe Kennealy takes the place of Halfback Hughes. Hughes was hurt in the Harvard game and Casey believes a short rest will do him good.

Van French punted during most of the session. Tufts was weak in this department at the Stadium and Crimson gains via that route counted heavily against the Medford eleven.

Van French

The line will be the same except Keith Kiana probably will fill Tyler's tackle berth if the Jumbo captain is unable to start.

Tufts is a favorite over Bowdoin.

The local fans are eager to get a glimpse at the Hildreth twins who will play ends for Bowdoin. Hollins and Morrill, of the Bowdoin eleven, are former Winthrop High players

The Bowdoin lineup will be C. Hildreth and H. Hildreth, ends; Robinson and McLean, tackles; Tucker and Townsend, guards; A. Smith, centre, and Morrill, Garland, Blake and Phillips in the backfield.

HARVARD ELEVEN OFF FOR BIG GAME WITH PRINCET N

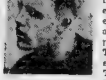
ELEVEN TO STAY AT TRENTON

The vanguard of the Harvard invasion of the Princeton Jungle arrived in Trenton, N. J., this morning and made preparations for the arrival of the Harvard varsity football squad and party. The vanguard was five football managers.

The first signs of a general exodus of Harvard undergraduates from Cambridge to Princeton appeared when the first auto parties breezed out of the yard loaded with cheering students.

Today the migration from Harvard is on in full blast.

"All roads lead to Princeton"—is the Harvard slogan. Students around the college tomorrow will be as scarce as snake's hips.



Luke Lockwood

Besides the sixteen coaches, there will be eleven managers, eleven attaches and forty-two players, 80 in all. They will stay at the Stacy-Trent Hotel in Trenton.

The squad went through an easy drill and dummy scrimmaged with the scrubs for twenty minutes, and closed the exercises with a snappy grass drill for the benefit of the 1,000 students present.

The varsity lined up with Hill and Combs at ends; Evans and Eastman as tackles; Dunker and Captain Hubbard, guards; Greenough centre, McGlone quarterback, and Cheek, Coburn and Jenkins.

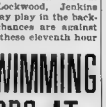
Hammond was on the field in moleskins, but did not participate in the scrimmage. His place was filled by Jenkins. Hammond will start for his foot is needed badly to offset the boots of Howell Van Gerbig and Sidney Lecendre of Princeton. His leg is in pretty bad shape, but it has responded to treatment and should be in shape by Saturday.

Cheek, Coburn and Hammond will start. Howe, Lockwood, Jenkins and Cordrigley may play in the backfield. But the chances are against Fisher's making these eleventh hour changes.

NEW SWIMMING RECORDS AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Establishment of four new world swimming records featured the formal opening of Loyola University's new pool. All four records were made by the Illinois Athletic Club team.

Johnny Weissmuller proved his comeback a complete success when he clipped two-fifths of a second off his own mark in the 100 meter, free style event and covered it in 58 3-5.



Sybil Bauer, woman's backstroke champion and the only woman who ever battered a man's record, cut one and three-fifths seconds off her own mark in the 100-yard back stroke, and hung up a new record of 1.14 1-5.

John Farcy, former inter-collegiate breast stroke champion of Minnesota University, covered the 100-yard breast stroke event in 1.12 3-5, and shaved one and one-fifth seconds from the former mark.

Stubby Kruger swam the 50-yards backstroke in 30 flat, four-fifths seconds from his former record.

NEW YORK TO GIVE A LICENSE TO STRIBLING

New York, Nov. 2.—Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy boxer, will be granted a license to box in New York. The Southerner filed formal application with the State Athletic Commission.

Stribling is only 18 and under the commission's ruling no boxer under 21 can engage in a match longer than six rounds.

However, the commission may waive this rule in Stribling's case, although he may be asked to box in preliminary contests to demonstrate that he is physically able to go a longer distance.

DARTMOUTH AT FENWAY PARK TOMORROW

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 2.—Dartmouth's football team will leave here today at noon to meet Brown at Fenway Park Saturday in what is considered by the Green coaching staff the stiffest game of the rest of the season.

Jack Cannell.

Coach Hawley drove his men in signal practice and a light scrimmage and then declared that the Brown encounter would be the hardest fought affair the Dartmouth players have entered yet.

A light rest was allowed the first string backfield with the exception of Dooley who stayed through the fifteen-minute game.

Loomis at fullback made one touchdown against the second team after a series of line bucks from midfield. Bolles kicked the goal.

The second and third teams lined up and struggled for twenty minutes without score.

The team will practice at Fenway Park on Friday afternoon.

At the expense of the athletic council the scrubs will journey to Boston to witness the game.

CHAPMAN 10 TO 8 CHOICE FOR GO WITH DREW

More local rivalry has been aroused by the return ring bout between "Red" Chapman of Chelsea and Johnny Drew of Worcester, which will take place tomorrow night at Mechanics Building, than in any bout arranged in Boston in years.

Not since the days when F. O. Kloby was reigning as monarch of the ring has so much local interest been aroused in flatic circles. Worcester and Chelsea are vieing with each other for popularity in ringdom, and the rival factions have already organized to march to Mechanics Building.

There is great bitterness between the rival camps. It was caused by the recent bout in Worcester in which Drew won the verdict much to the surprise of Chapman.

Following the fight, the rival factions nearly came to blows. It was claimed by the Chapman faction that Drew ignored the scales and refused to weigh in.

Drew, however, will be forced to weigh 128 pounds tomorrow at 3 o'clock. He has posted a forfeit of $500 to make the weight, so it is not expected that there will be any trouble on this score.

Both boys have been training hard at local gyms in anticipation of the bout. Each is anxious to win. A victory means some big bouts for either one.

BOTH TO WEIGH IN AT 128 POUNDS.

Chapman rules a 10 to 8 favorite to win, but favorites have been having a difficult time in coming through this year. Drew, however, on account of his hard hitting ability, is liable to turn the tables and put over another short end victory.

There will be a gathering of notables at the ringside when Chapman and Drew scramble into the ring.

Mayor Peter Sullivan of Worcester will head a delegation of 1,000 fans from Worcester and will occupy a seat of honor at the ringside. The Worcester Mayor is a staunch supporter of Drew and is anxious to see him climb to dizzy heights in fistiana.

Chapman also will be backed by notables, Mayor Quigley of Chelsea and Mayor Noone of Revere, who never miss an opportunity of seeing Chapman in action will be on hand to witness the meeting of the rivals.

While Chapman is now the favorite, it is expected that Drew may go into the ring a slight favorite by the time the Worcester delegation arrives. The Worcester fans made a cleanup the last time these boys met and they are out to repeat.

There is also keen rivalry existing in the semi-final. Johnny Sheppard of Woburn, who recently returned after a conquering tour of the West where he defeated all the leading tantams of that section clashes with Paddy Owens of Cambridge.

OUT WITH DEFI TO ALL LEADING BANTAMS

Shepard is out with a defi to meet all the leading bantams of the country and a victory over Owens will put him in line for some big bouts.

Chick Cavanaugh of Cambridge, and Joe Pangrace of Weymouth who recently gave the fans one of the most thrilling bouts of the year will clash again in an eight rounder. This meeting should stir the fans to action as the fur is sure to fly when they climb into the ring.

Marty Donahue, another Worcester favorite will make his bow in the Hub when he takes on Paul De Salvo of Quincy in an eight round bout in the curtain raiser.

Harvard Students Give Eleven Send-off

To the tune of "Fair Harvard" and preceded by the Harvard band, nearly 1,000 Harvard students assembled at Widener Library and marched to the Stadium and watched the squad run through the last major practice session before the Princeton game.

After practice the crowd filed out of the Stadium to the locker building where they cheered the team and the coaches.

To put the team in a psychological frame of mind, the crowd shouted "We'll beat Princeton, we'll beat Princeton," twenty times and called it a day.

FITTONS AND DEDHAM TO PLAY ON SUNDAY

The Fitton A. C. football team of East Boston will play the Dedham Town Team at Stone Park, Dedham, at 2:30 on Sunday.

Dedham has played together for three years and in that time has lost only two games.

The Dedham team will have their regular lineup: Cox, le, Fescher lt, Liberator lg, Crawford c, Kiley rg, Clancey rt, Dixon re, Manning, qb, Weachrob lhb, Anderson rhb, Newman fb.

MINOR LEAGUES TO CONFER ON THE DRAFT

Chicago, Nov. 2.—An invitation to the club owners of the International and Pacific Coast leagues to meet in joint session with the American Association here December 10, was issued by Thomas J. Hickey, president of the organization.

President Hickey said a number of important subjects concerning the class A. A. leagues, among them draft issue, should be considered before the clubowners go into session with the majors.

MEDFORD HAS BIG LEAD FOR SUBURBAN FLAG

By FRED C. LANE.

There is a general feeling in scholastic circles, especially, that Medford High has clinched the title in the Suburban League.

There are two hurdles that Medford must clear before their way is cleared of all obstructions in the path to the flag.

On Saturday, Newton High, for years one of the leading scholastic teams in the State, is met.

The Orange and Black team has not won a league game this season, although their showings in every contest warrants a better record.

Newton lost on breaks. The first signs of the jinx appeared early in the season, when three of the best backfield players were made ineligible.

Newton is fighting with its back against the wall. They have no chance to win the title, yet are fighting just as hard as though the championship rested on each game.

Because of this fact, Medford High has something to consider in their race to win. The game will be a preparation for Saturday's game. Medford will win if they play their game.

Their line is the strongest in the league. Their backfield is one of the best, both on defence and offence. In addition, they have a drop kicker of note in Dick Phelan, the centre.

On paper Newton is outclassed.

Cambridge Latin which plays Medford a week from Saturday has been extremely lucky. They have not lost a game and have tied two. Poor judgment prevented a Maiden victory.

The contest will be worth seeing. Newton will fight hard and Medford will fight harder than any time this year to win. The game will be played at Claflin Field, Newton.

LATIN DEFEATS DORCHESTER, 6 TO 3

The Boston Latin eleven came out victorious in their battle with Dorchester, 6 to 3, at Braves Field.

The third period proved to be the winning session for the Purple aggregation when Buddy Brine, captain of the Latin team, made a right end run that resulted in a touchdown.

Dorchester had scored in the first period on McGuirk's dropkick from the Latin 50-yard line. On the kickoff by McGuirk,

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The du Ponts have been among the biggest money-makers in America. It will interest business men everywhere to learn one of the main reasons they give for their big ness success.

They have always made their principal employes partners, sharers in the profits.

They have long believed in paying according to results. In addition to their salaries, important men who had done meritorious work, have always been generously rewarded out of the money they helped the company to earn. They believe that this is a sound business agreement. They say that it has contributed in no small measure to the successful development of the du Pont activities.

Here's another interesting development arising out of the du Pont policy for encouraging their principal associates to throw themselves whole-heartedly into helping the business:

It is known that the du Ponts found themselves with many, many millions of dollars beyond what they could possibly use in their chemical and explosive operations, that they had to look around for a new field for the investment of the utilization of all this wealth. That was why and how they came to become very heavily interested in General Motors.

Their original intention was to confine themselves to looking after the financial end of this gigantic enterprise, and to leave the manufacturing, the operating end undisturbed. Things went agley, however, and the du Ponts found themselves impelled to saddle the responsibility of taking over the company's complete management.

But they weren't practical motor manufacturers. They had always stuck strictly to explosive and chemical plants. In the emergency, Pierre S. du Pont, assumed the presidency of General Motors and immediately began to devote to the duties all his executive abilities The task of meeting the new conditions was rather staggering. Step by step, however, the organization was put in order and the right men placed in the right positions.

• • •

But the business was not being run on the principles which had contributed so valuably to the success of the du Pont Company. The principal executives were made General Motors partners, profit sharers on a clearly defined basis. It was found that the men running each of the companies comprising the General Motors com bination were interested solely in their own one plants and gave no thought to the interests of General Motors as a whole

How could these deficiencies be remedied?

The du Ponts decided to furnish at less than cost label a big large block of General Motors stock—no less than 2,250,000 shares—for acquisition by some seventy leading General Motors executives. The terms named were such that these executives could end up the owners of all the stock, worth approximately $25,000,000 even at this early stage of the company's development, without having to dip into their salaries. Their share of the profits, it was figured, would meet the cost of the stock.

This done, Pierre du Pont felt foot free to step out of the presidency and to install in his stead a recognized automotive operating genius, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. Thus the task of earning profits sufficient, first, to pay a generous dividend to the General Motors group of holders and to leave a margin in which the executive profit sharers can participate, is put up squarely to these executives

The du Ponts, from their very long business experience, are confident that this arrangement will yield the very best possible results for all General Motors stockholders. It is human nature, they have found to work more enthusiastically on one's own interest than for the interest of others

We Must Have Hard Coal

If Washington Limits Us to Soft Coal New England Will Be Doubtful Territory for the Party in Power at the Next Election

We gather from the newspaper accounts that the best which Washington thinks it can do for the people of New York and New England in the present coal situation is to wean us away from hard coal and to turn us loose on soft coal.

But we want to assure officialdom in Washington, which now happens to be Republican, that if this is the best they can do in the coal situation they can count New England as doubtful political territory henceforth. New England is not going to give up her hard coal because the railroads will not give up the transportation of coal to ships and the coal barons and the railroads will not reorganize their methods of mining and delivering coal, and the Republican government will not make them do either.

We had a taste of soft coal last year. It was quite enough to satisfy the curiosity of the people of New York and New England concerning soft coal burning. Soft coal at best is bad enough, but soft coal in hard coal furnaces is worse. And we are not going to give up the tens of millions of dollars' worth of hard coal equipment and suffer the inconveniences and the dirt of soft coal because our politicians have neither the courage nor the capacity nor the will to protect us from the extortion and incompetence of a great monopoly in a necessary of life!

We are going to hold the party responsible for a do-nothing policy to a strict accountability, because we know that THEY know that there is a simple remedy, namely, the public ownership and operation of the railroads.

Let Germany Quiet Down

E. A. Filene Warns France Against Bumptiousness in Attempting to Collect Her Debts

Our merchant, Edward A. Filene, who founded the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris and who seems to be persona grata in France, has done some plain talking to one of their influential political journals.

He acknowledges the necessity of France's remaining armed against a hostile Germany. But he warns France against bumptiousness and against a disposition not to allow Germany to quiet down and recover from her fever.

Speaking to the French people directly, Mr. Filene said:

If you adopt such a policy, if you wish to obtain credit from America, without which reconstruction must be difficult, you must begin by endeavoring to obtain peaceful solutions in Europe by means of agreements like those signed at Wiesbaden by Rathenau and Loucheur, and between Lubersac and Stinnes. It is useless saying to Germany, "You possess nothing, but pay all the same." You must first fix the manner of payment. Then, having prepared for peace, you can count upon our aid and even discuss the problem of interallied debt.

We do not happen to remember the Stinnes agreement. We should be very suspicious of the agreement between Big Business in the two countries. We are more inclined to take Lloyd George's attitude that the big industrialists of both countries have not been averse to the present tendencies, the German industrialists hoping for a dictatorship and the overthrow of the labor unions and the Socialistic influence in Germany, either by a French military dictatorship or by a German military dictatorship.

However that may be, the fact that France is continuing to insist upon payments without having ascertained how far the payments can be made, keeps sparks flying around the powderhouse all the time. It is too bad.

Increase in R. R. Fares

Up to the Roads to Show That It Is Costing More for Passenger Transportation

The argument is hackneyed that public authorities have no moral right to permit a railroad to raise its fares where it is possible to prevent it after those fares have been in force for a long time and a community has grown up about the several fare limits on the assumption that those fares are to continue.

It is just as much a moral confiscation unnecessarily to raise the fares from the Boston suburbs to Boston as it is arbitrarily to seize some other value from a man's real estate in the suburbs.

We admit that it would be also confiscation to compel the railroads to carry passengers below cost, if they can show that the passengers are being carried below cost, and that the cost is as low as it ought to be under good honest management. We do not believe that they can show it. They are charging as much as the street railways are charging, and their turnover is, or is capable of being, much greater.

We urge upon the Public Utilities Commission to remember that a hackneyed objection, such as the one that there is an implied contract between those who build in the suburbs on the basis of a certain fixed fare and those responsible for the establishment of the fare, has considerable value from the mere fact that it IS hackneyed. It has survived constant attacks through the years.

We also urge upon those who are going to have their cost of living increased by the increase in their carfares to fight to the last ditch to make the railroads ACTUALLY SHOW that it is costing more and ought to cost more to transport the passengers than they are now paying. And when we say "show that it is costing more than they are now paying" we mean that it is costing more, even assuming the best management on the part of the railroads. If electrification would make it cheap, or if any other improvement in operation or equipment would make it cheaper, then the cost must be reckoned on the basis of that improvement.

OLD MASTER GOT FOR A SONG

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Considered by its owners as one of the most famous pictures in the world, a picture which is believed to be a forgotten work by Giorgione, master and friend of Titian and founder of the Venetian school, has been picked up for the proverbial song by Professor Mizzi, art connoisseur and collector, and now hangs in a modest room in Southeast London.

The work is the untouched duplicate of the picture in the Palazzo Pitti in Florence, which was altered in the seventeenth century, and is a portrait of a clerical group, in which two popes are depicted, and is called "Il Concerto."

Protests General Haller

Editor Boston American:

May I add my protest against any official welcome to General Haller? If individuals or organizations wish to honor a man who has been responsible for atrocities, that is their privilege; but for the city or State to do so would be a cause of sorrow to many others besides the Jews.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

He Speeds No More

Editor Boston American:

I have just discovered one sure way of preventing one's self from breaking the speed laws. By making a slight change in my ignition, it is impossible to go faster than twenty miles an hour. When my speedometer shows more than twenty miles, it automatically shuts off my battery, but turns it on again on resuming normal speed. It seems to me a law should be passed requiring all automobiles to be fitted with such an arrangement.

O. C. KOEHLER.

Ectoplasms

Editor Boston American:

A gentleman from London talked recently at a local hotel of the comfort he had derived from a photo of himself in which his dead wife also appears. Now the remarkable thing about the picture is that the ectoplasmic visitant not only had hair on her head, a nose and mouth, but sported a monocle in her right eye as well! If this isn't making a farce of a solemn subject then a centipede hasn't a leg to stand on.

IMAGINATION TAKES FLIGHT WITH LIEUT. BROW

By Herbert Kaufman

LIEUTENANT BROW, piloting a Curtiss plane, averaged 259 miles an hour. As he flew, imagination, glancing down, beheld the earth shrink like a hatter's blank on a steam form.

So progress and invention are fast felting tight our forty-eight States.

Whenever airships set records, motor trucks gain speed and locomotives shorten schedules, the four corners of the republic edge nearer; Seattle moves toward Boston; San Francisco inches closer to New York and the Gulf of Mexico hears the toot of Great Lakes' sirens a bit clearer.

Map-makers still blindly insist that Atlantic and Pacific are the same distance apart as when prairie schooners took the trail from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon, but mail-pouches and freight shipments nail the manifest lie.

Conquisitadors, trappers, traders and wilderness-breakers rode through Spring rains and Winter gales before they traversed the continent. They hitched their wagons to mules and oxen.

We've harnessed ours to lightning bolts, and winged motors race neck and nose with the sun.

Two More Tottering Thrones

Don't say that you'll never breakfast on Puget Sound and sup by nightfall in Atlantic City. It's being done right now.

Aviators scribbling advertisements against the clouds, unconsciously write the face of a new economic history there.

Literal revolution is in their propellors—industrial revolution.

Czar Steam sits on a tottering throne. Old King Coal's due to abdicate!

Mightier forces prepare to rule commerce and society. They're training their wold "white horses" for a campaign of conquest—massing in the heavens and among the mountains for the relief of expense oppressed business—aiming to down upkeep and shatter the barriers between ambition and opportunity.

The rich Virginian West rescue the crowded, half-resourced East before compounding distribution charges reach the danger mark.

Loud Groans From Overhead

The clock-face of prosperity is marked with premature and needless wrinkles. Dr. Efficiency will rub them out.

Read balance sheets and note how much it costs to concentrate larders at one end of the country and appetites at the other.

Hear overhead's groan at the criminal extravagance of bringing bulk timber from Washington and Oregon to door, sash and trim mills in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

What supreme asininity to expand manufacturing where raw materials are disappearing; where fuel prices rise annually; where every salary gain is offset by real estate and construction advances; where congestion sustains a ceaseless struggle between evermounting wages and faster jumping household bills.

Please Page Dividends and Dinner Pails

All ready for a new deal! Plug those billion-dollar leaks!

Factory moving time is here. Locate better and bigger and cheaper plants among exhaustless woodpiles, waterfalls and bread boxes—with electrification, railways and paved roads already on the premises.

Establish a branch lathe in sight of a smelter to supply it. Buy your current from power dams within walking reach.

Purchase your wheat from neighboring fields—your flour barrel staves from the forest—your cartons and paper products from a pulp mill on the local telephone exchange.

Haul by rail or river. Take your pick of harbors crowded with international and coastwise shipping.

Bring employes, desperately balancing between income and outgo, to a land where folk earning far less are able to own spacious, gracious bungalows, with flower gardens in front and a kitchen patch, poultry yard, cow pasture and garage in the rear.

Omnipresent churches, theatres, schools and shops for their wives and children. And what tables! Prize fruits and berries! Mountain trout and fresh salmon free for the taking from a thousand streams. Pheasant and quail and grouse in meadows! Sheep and cattle lining the horizon; snow-capped ranges through one window and the tang of the ocean through another.

Opportunity in Search of Experience

Twenty years ago Detroit was farther from Manhattan than Seattle or San Diego is today.

Convenience and luxury are no longer geographical privileges.

The only difference between Pacific and Atlantic cities is a matter of environment—climate, cleanliness and health; and all in favor of the newer America.

Too many people in one part of the land striving for footholds—scrambling for crumbs while lavishness goes begging.

America must till its chances and fill its cupboards at less expense; fertilise Western possibility with Eastern experience; restrain national overheads by a saner division of labor; transfer those manufacturing operations that can best be served at the source of supply to areas of raw production, and thereby get "more goods for the same money or the same goods for less money."

The Northwest and the Pacific have "the crops and timber, mines and land, ships on the ocean and want but men."

From Hand to Mouth

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there any of you readers who could help me out? My husband left me five months before my baby was born, and for a year it has been just living hand to mouth. I have two boys, one ten, and he has no heavy underwear or shoes. I would be glad to get anything for him. He takes size 2½ in shoes. My baby boy is six months old, and he has nothing to go out with. I had to pawn my wedding ring and the little furniture I had, and in addition my rent has gone up this week. I have a milk leg, and suffer terribly from it, because I can't afford to get an elastic bandage or stocking. If someone has a bandage or elastic stocking they don't use any more, I would be very grateful for it. My boy has only one waist, and I have to wash it out every night. I take size 40 and size six shoe.

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a mattress for a child's crib that is practically new. Anyone may have the mattress by calling at this address.

MRS. F. L. J.

Thank you. This will help some mother a lot. We will await replies.

Sends Generous Offer

Editor Helping Hand:

It makes my heart ache to see so many unfortunates and I thought I would try to help. Here is a list of what I will send as soon as you send the address of some worthy person: Two sweaters, pair of white shoes, size 6, voile dress, black petticoat never worn, light blue coat, bathrobe for a boy four, and a few dresses for a girl three or four. I will have some more later on. Please send me also the address of Mary C. I have a Winter coat in good condition which I think will fit her.

MRS. J. B. 2.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. N. M., mother of four children, who will appreciate the clothing you mention.

Children Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a girl fifteen and I am writing to you to ask if any of your kind readers would have any clothes to give us. My mother is a widow and lame, and cannot work much. She was left with six children, and it is pretty hard for her to see us in need of warm clothes for the Winter. We are four girls, two, eleven, twelve and fifteen, and two boys, nine and sixteen. My oldest brother is working, but he is so young he doesn't earn much, and it makes it pretty hard for us. Mother also needs clothes, size 36 and she also needs a coat.

Offer a Bed

Editor Helping Hand:

I am sending you a list of a few things I would like to give to anyone that wants them. I have some children's clothes, some dresses, size 8 and 9 and some 6, some rompers, size 2, and dresses and bloomers for a six and a three-year-old child, waists and pants for a boy, size 10, and some cloth for children's clothes. I also have a bed, spring and mattress if anyone wants it.

Many Things to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have several articles of clothing that I should like to give to someone who would appreciate them. They include clothing for a child about six (girl) and for a one-year-old baby. I also have some heavy underwear for a man around 40 or 42, some coats and vests, socks, etc., and house-dresses, underwear, Winter coats, etc., for a woman around 38.

MRS. F. J. M. 3.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. B. S., who will be very grateful for the children's clothes, and of Mrs. M. R., who, with her husband, will find good use for the other things.

Old Lady in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I am asking help for an old lady past sixty years old, who is in very poor circumstances. She is the sole support of herself and her grandson, who is eight years old, and whose mother died at his birth. She works all she possibly can, but the little boy is very much in need of clothing, particularly an overcoat, size 9 or 10. She is also much in need of clothing. I have helped them as much as I can, but hope that some reader can find an overcoat for the boy. She has never asked for aid before, but does not know any other way.

MRS. D. C. 2.

Will Mrs. C. L., who asked recently for the address of Mrs. J. L., please send us her address? Her letter mentioned a self-addressed envelope, but it must have been lost.

Asks for School Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a girl of fourteen and in very poor circumstances. My father is sick and not able to work, and we have a hard time to get along. I would be very thankful if you could help me out with school dresses. I have two little brothers that haven't any pants or blouses to wear, and part of the time they have to stay home from school on account of not having any clothes. They are six and ten.

How a King Makes Love

Confided by the Bewitching Dancer Who Dazzled Alfonso, and Now Can't Dodge the Duke, His Royal Cousin, Delegated to Be His Romeo-by-Proxy

TAKE it from Leonore Hughes, the blonde beauty of the famous twinkling toes—kings make love today just as romantically as they did when Arthur won his Guinevere. They don't say it with battle-axes any more, but here's a proud monarch chasing a duke as a courier half around the world to see if Leonore is still twinkling in his direction and will fill that certain little appointment with him in Paris when Spring reddens the roses in the Tuileries Gardens!

Alfonso of Spain is the royal wooer who—Miss Hughes blushingly admits—pursues the American dancer. And that's why, if tattletales are correct, Alfonso's own cousin, Duke Ferdinand de Durcal, dawdles nightly in the New York trottery where Leonore Hughes dances—simply and solely that his presence may remind Miss Hughes of the king across the water and that Paris "date"!

Broadway has been wondering about the Duke. The boys and girls had about decided that Miss Hughes, of whom a British lord was enamored only a year ago, had made another titled conquest, when, out of Miss Hughes's own mouth tinkles the real reason for the Duke's faithful attendance. Durcal is playing John Alden to the King's Miles Standish! He's just one of the moves in the fascinating game, "How a King Makes Love!"

Miss Hughes and King Alfonso met, she says, last Summer at Biarritz.

"I was dancing with Maurice at the Royal Casino. We had been to Italy and to Deauville and this was our first appearance at Biarritz. I knew the King of Spain was summering there, but I wasn't particularly interested.

"There was a tremendous crowd in the Casino on our opening night. The King was pointed out to me, seated with his party at the most prominent table. He isn't particularly good-looking, with his long Bourbon nose and long chin and heavy mustache. But he has rather jolly eyes—and he's cute!

"After my solo dance, a note was brought to me on the back of a menu card—'His Majesty requests the pleasure of an introduction to Miss Hughes.' Naturally, I accepted. Being nice to kings and millionaires and other personages is part of my business. I have no scruples about sparing a smile for royalty when I wouldn't give a look to a tourist from Oklahoma. And of course I'd heard about Alfonso's generosity—how he presented medals to the girls who danced with him at Deauville last year. If any medals were coming my way, I wasn't going to dodge."

Miss Hughes paused, smiling reminiscently.

"Well, what else can I say? I must be modest, you know. He was attracted, of course, and he was altogether charming to me. That first night he waited in the foyer of the Casino until I appeared. He was host at a wonderful dinner. After that, he gave me a grand rush—flowers every day, dancing every night, motor rides, boxes at the polo matches, dinners and—this!"

Miss Hughes held up her right hand. On one finger glittered an enormous diamond—eighteen karats and a full one inch square.

"That was a parting gift," she said. "Did I kiss him goodbye? Certainly NOT. The last thing he said was, 'See you in Paris in the Spring!' He'd been talking to me about how lovely Paris is in April and I'd told him I would be there then. And he said he would join me. But I didn't dream he meant it. Now I'm convinced he did. For this is what happened—

And Miss Hughes told how, after leaving Biarritz two weeks after her meeting with the King, she returned to Paris; and there, only a few days after her arrival, the card of Duke Ferdinand de Durcal was brought to her suite! She had met the Duke at Biarritz, where he was the particular chum of his royal cousin.

Miss Hughes received the Duke and they chatted. His Majesty had sent his regards. His Majesty prayed that, if Miss Hughes could command him in any way, she would so do. His Majesty wished to remind Miss Hughes that he would see her in Paris in the Spring. And, with that, the Duke made his adieus.

Miss Hughes did not see the Duke any more for weeks, she says. She had practically forgotten him and his royal messages in the rush of getting ready to sail for America. And then, only a few weeks after she landed in New York, who should turn up but the Duke again!

His Majesty had sent his renewed regards. His Majesty was desirous of knowing if Miss Hughes was well and happy. His Majesty prayed that, if Miss Hughes could command him in any way, she would not hesitate to do so. And His Majesty's final message to Miss Hughes was—Paris in the Spring!

"Since then," admits Miss Hughes, "I've seen the Duke either every day or every night. And always he speaks glowingly of his cousin, Alfonso."

Broadway is interested by its dainty dancer's revelation. But Broadway is not exactly startled.

For one thing, the spectacle of a king wooing a stage beauty is not altogether new, even in these modern days when kings are few and far between and must look rather strictly to their p's and q's or risk a revolution.

The late King Manuel of Portugal lavished a fortune on Gaby Deslys. Old King Leopold of Belgium was notorious for his stage amours. No professional beauty set foot in his kingdom that "Spadebeard" did not entertain in her honor. The ex-Kaiser of Germany was reputed to have made heavy Hohenzollern love to several famous actresses, and his son and heir, the Crown Prince, followed blatantly in his father's footsteps. Popular King Edward of England was reputed to have been an engaging gallant in his youth, and his grandson, the Prince of Wales, with his attentions to the Duncan sisters in London, and a notorious French soubrette, carried on the romantic tradition.

Broadway is not surprised that Alfonso of Spain, "last of the Bourbons," should likewise be the last representative of kingly lovers. Gallantry is in his blood; the Bourbon line is famous for its gay romances since the days of Louis the Fourteenth and beyond. Alfonso himself has never figured in any deep-dyed scandals. Rather has he seemed the popular, pleasure-loving type who chases the Blind Bow-Boy with a laugh and a light hand.

His airy attentions to the beauties of Deauville were more frivolous than naughty. They worked no greater harm than to get him lampooned on the Paris stage, as the result of which the Spanish cabinet—inspired thereto, it is said, by the Queen—served notice on Alfonso that he had better spend more time at home and less in the jazzy ballrooms of the Riviera.

Broadway, observing the almost naïve method of Alfonso's approach to Miss Hughes, smiles as at the antics of some favorite son. Nor is Broadway particularly amazed that Miss Hughes should awaken tender emotions in the breast of a king. For Miss Hughes has had celebrated admirers before.

There was young Lord Burghersh, who trotted in her train when he was in America with the British mission to the Washington Disarmament Conference—and then trotted back to England, came into his inheritance as the Earl of Westmorland and married the rich and widowed Mrs. Arthur Cappel.

There was, too, the surprising statement of wealthy Walter Lewisohn. It was in response to what he believed was a message from her that he went to the sanatorium where he is now detained—against his own will, according to the declaration of his attorney.

Miss Hughes denies they were more than casual friends and says the name of another dancing star was used.

Maurice, the dancer, partner to Miss Hughes since his divorce from his former partner, Gladys Walton, frequently has been rumored engaged to her. His attraction for women—of society as well as the stage—is well known.

No, Broadway says that Leonore Hughes might have her pick of many men, from American millionaires to blue-blooded members of the British peerage. The love-making of a king might thrill her, but it is scarcely likely to turn her sleek blonde head, even when the king splurges to the extent of delegating his own flesh and blood to watch over her welfare.

Paris in the Spring?

Perhaps. But Broadway is willing to bet both ways on that "date" with more than one taker, too.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A NEW YORK millionaire who loves comfort even when he's bathing has just purchased an over-stuffed bathtub.

HE says there's no danger of hurting yourself when you slip if you have the bottom of the tub upholstered.

HE claims that when it's filled with beautiful sofa cushions, his enameled washing machine looks exactly like a chaise lounge.

HE'S very artistic and uses a console table for a soap dish.

HE also had the bathtub made to order with an open fireplace in one end of it.

HE can sit in the water and pop corn at the same time.

EVERYTHING harmonizes. There's a bridge also a back of the tub and the wash rags are made out of changeable taffeta.

HE converted the wash bowl into an aquarium by filling it with gold fish.

A TELEPHONE is very handy, too, in case he runs out of soap and wants to telephone to the grocery store for some more.

IN case some of his gold fish died, he could also tell the delicatessen to send up a couple of cans of sardines.

SARDINES aren't as ornamental as goldfish but they're a whole lot cheaper.

UP to now, people have devoted all their artistry to the parlor, but by making the bathroom attractive it will help to take the sting out of Saturday night.

One evening during this Summer a friend and I went to a dance at a popular place nearby. As we entered the hall my friend suggested that we dance and there was no one on the floor. We had gone around several times when a lady came up and tapped me on the shoulder. Imagine my embarrassment when she informed me that the dancing had not begun and the orchestra was giving a concert.
